GOP Divided On Reaction To M'Carthy

Bitter Debate May Leave Scars That Will Never Heal

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Republicans in the Senate disagreed today on whether wounds opened by the bitterly-contested McCarthy censure battle would leave lasting scars on the Republican party.

One pro-McCarthy Republican who asked not to be quoted by name said flatly:

"We will never forgive Sen. Flanders."

Won't Be Forgiven

The senator who asserted Flanders won't be forgiven also said he understands pro-McCarthy leaders in the Senate may lead some kind of action against Flanders when the 84th Congress convenes next month.

Questioned on that today, Flanders said: "'I am prepared to meet any attack on me. I have nothing to conceal."

Sen. Aiken (R-Vt) said that "if the cover could be rolled back" on the inner machinery of the Senate it could be seen that some sharply conflicting views held by Republican senators on U.S. policy in Asia played a part in the voting.

On final passage of the resolution condeming the conduct of the Wisconsin Republican, 22 Republicans led by Sen. Knowland of California, the majority leader, voted against condemnation and 22 for.

But two other Republicans—Sens. Bricker of Ohio and Capehart of Indiana—would have voted against the resolution had they been present. And McCarthy himself did not vote. That leaves a division of 22 for and 25 against the rebuke that was given McCarthy.

Would Not Have Voted

The remaining Republican was Sen. Wiley of Wisconsin who had told the Senate he would not have voted one way or the other had he been present.

Sen. Bennett (R-Utah), author of the two counts in the final version of the resolution, said he thinks Senate Republicans "will forget the heat of this thing" next year when "other problems" come along.

And Sen. Carlson (R-Kan), a member of the censure committee, said the Republican party and other parties "have had their differences before."

There seemed to be little if any disposition on the part of Republican senators to challenge or even question Knowland's continued position as party leader in the Senate.

Aiken said that as of now, Knowland does not represent a majority of his Republican colleages on some foreign policy questions. He cited Knowland's demand for a more positive U.S. action to free Americans imprisoned in Red China on spy charges.

Passenger Had Pass, But Got In Wrong Vehicle

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 3 (AP) — The driver asked Truman McLaughlin for 65 cents fare last night.

McLaughlin got out his streetcar pass. The driver demanded cash.

"I pay for all my rides with this," McLaughlin said.

The two argued. A policeman was called.

"I've got a pass," McLaughlin told the officer. "Why do I have to pay for riding a bus?"

The officer arrested McLaughlin on a charge of drunkeness and in District Court today he was fined $1 and costs.

Cases Of U. S. Fliers To Go Before The UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Dec. 3 (AP)—The United States and its allies in Korea agreed tonight to place before the U. N. Assembly at the earliest possible moment the case of the 11 American fliers held as spies in Red China.

This decision was announced by the chief American delegate to the U.N., Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., after a meeting of the 16 U.N. Allies in Lodge's office. He issued the following brief statement to newsmen:

"We had a meeting of the 16 and there is marvelous and inspiring unanimity on the vital need to get release of the 11 American men and of all others who fought as members of the U.N. Command and are detained in violation of the Korean armistice agreement.

"We reached agreement that we would take the matter up in the General Assembly at the earliest possible date."

Lodge's announcement came shortly after Britain had disclosed it was lining up firmly with the United States in an attempt to obtain the release of the imprisoned aviators.

There was no indication when a case would be filed with the Assembly.

At a meeting of the Allies yesterday, Lodge said the United States wanted the quickest possible action and asked the Allies for their views as to the best course. The meeting tonight was the second secret huddle.

A Foreign Office spokesman said in London that the British government agrees with the United States that action in the United Nations on this problem is desirable and the government is in consultation as to what form this action should take.

British Minister of State Anthony Nutting, chief of the United Kingdom delegation to the U.N., met with Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., United States, and the other top delegates shortly after Lodge had a long conference with Secretary of State Dulles.

Conduct Resolution Will Be Unchanged

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The resolution adopted by the Senate condemning the conduct of Sen. McCarthy will take its place in congressional archives—unadorned and as-is.

Charles L. Watkins, the Senate parliamentarian, said that like other Senate resolutions the original copy used in the debate, with all the various amendments written in, will be filed in the office of the Senate secretary.

It will not bear any signatures nor will any seal be affixed.

Cop Slayers Are Caught

Lawrence J. Snow (left), 22, and James Church Isted, 22, are booked for murder on charges of slaying Policeman Frank Sjolander in Albuquerque, N. M. Snow and Isted, both California parolees, were tracked down by bloodhounds and a 300-man posse which hunted them for 14 hours. The policeman was killed in a gun battle Wednesday.

Ousted Workers For UN Will Be Paid Damages

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Dec. 3 (AP)—The United States bowed today to a World Court decision upholding payment by the U.N. of $179,420 in damages to 11 American staff members fired after U.S. loyalty inquiries.

Sen. James W. Fulbright (D-Ark), representing the United States in the Budget Committee here, voiced the administration stand that the United States still dissented from the view that the fired personnel ought to be paid or that the U.N. Assembly had to follow without question the rulings of the U.N. administrative tribunal.

Then Fulbright added: "My delegation is prepared to respect the authority and competence of the International Court of Justice. Therefore, having stated our legal views with particular reference to the various opinions of the judges of the court, we believe it should not be necessary to renew arguments which were fully heard before the court."

Some congressmen and some organizations have voiced opinions that the wage indemnities should not be paid.

The court at The Hague ruled 9-3 last July that the General Assembly had no right to refuse to pay any awards ordered by the U.N. administrative tribunal if a staff member was fired and appealed.

Fulbright told the committee that the discharged employes were fired "after they refused to answer questions put to them by competent investigative authorities of the U.S. government.

"The questions related to membership in the Communist party or subversive activities against the United States. The staff members pleaded that under the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution they were privileged not to answer because the answers might tend to incriminate them."

The biggest single award was ordered to Jack Harris, 42, former Trusteeship Council expert on Africa and wartime OSS "cloak and dagger" agent, who was awarded $40,000.

New Immigration Offices Are Created

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Atty. Gen. Brownell today announced a general reorganization of the Immigration Service involving the creation of four regional headquarters which will take over much of the work now done in Washington.

The new regional headquarters will be at Burlington, Vt.; Richmond, Va.; St. Paul, Minn.; and San Pedro, Calif. They will supervise district offices in their areas.

The number of district offices is being reduced from 15 to 11 by abolishing the Honolulu, Los Angeles, Baltimore and St. Albans, Vt. districts. They will be replaced by suboffices.

Elderly Man, 113, Advertises For, Weds Woman, 21

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Dec. 3 (AP) — Omer Erkan, aged 113, married a 21-year-old woman yesterday after advertising that he would bestow a house and $25,000 worth of land on a bride.

Press reports today from Antalya on Turkey's southern Mediterranean coast identified the bride only as a sister-in-law of one of Erkan's 16 grandchildren. Erkan's first wife died a month ago. He made the newspaper offer shortly after specifying the new wife must be under 29.

Antalya newspapers said he recieved 44 answers.

Parolees Caught Without Battle

ISLETA PUEBLO, N.M., Dec. 3 (AP)—Tracked down by bloodhounds, two young California parolees charged in the slaying of an Albuquerque policeman surrendered today without a fight.

State Police Chief Joe Roach said the captives, found armed and hiding in a ditch, were positively identified as James Church Isted, 22, and Lawrence J. Snow, 21.

When four officers approached their hiding place, led by the eager dogs, the two stepped out with their hands high.

"We're the men you're looking for," Isted said. They threw down their guns a .45 automatic and a Mauser pistol.

Isted, after being taken to the Albuquerque jail, admitted firing eight shots in the gun battle Wednesday morning, Asst. Police Chief Frank Doyle said.

Isted and Snow had been hunted since the early Wednesday morning gun battle in which Patrolman Frank Sjolander, 28, was killed and Patrolman Eugene Casey, 30, critically wounded.

James Leroy Spahr, 21, who opened fire on Sjolander and Casey, was shot and killed by the officers as they fell.

21 Persons Killed In Train Wreck

LOUVAIN, Belgium, Dec. 3 (AP)—The death toll in a suburban train wreck here yesterday mounted to 21 today, including 18 German soccer fans on the way home from a match in London.

The engineer and fireman of the train also perished when the train jumped the tracks and plunged over an 18-foot embankment in the suburb of Wilsele. The body of an unidentified woman was found beneath one of the wrecked coaches today.

Nixon Receives Veterans Award

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon received today the veterans of the year award from the District of Columbia Department of Veterans of Foreign Wars.

"This is an unexpected and magnificent award," said Nixon. "There are other people who deserve it much more than I do."

D. C Department Commander Zed L. Williams Jr. told Nixon "We present this to you for your service to veterans."

Oregon Recount Action Dropped By Senate Group

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Sen. Cordon (R-Ore) declined today to go along with a demand for a recount in his election loss to Democrat Richard L. Neuberger and the case was promptly dropped.

It was Neuberger's narrow victory in Oregon, the last of the Nov. 2 elections to be decided, that gave the Democrats their one-vote edge for organizing the New Senate in January.

The demand for a recount came from Jess J. Gard, Republican national committeeman for Oregon, who said he was acting as a private citizen.

"Less than half of one per cent separated the two candidates," Gard told a reporter. "There could be a mistake."

Latest figures showed Neuberger with 285,775 votes to 283,313 for Cordon, a margin of 2,462.

Cordon, who has been a senator for 10 years, said in a statement:

"Although importuned by a great number of my friends and supporters in Oregon to file a contest of the recent election, because of many unusual situations which developed therein, I feel there is no legal ground for such action.

"I shall not contest the election."

Gard's petition was filed with the Elections subcommittee of the Senate Rules Committee. Sen. Hayden (D-Ariz) of the committee said Gard reported there were numerous irregularities in Multnomah County, which includes the city of Portland, and, "Cordon got a raw deal."

The subcommittee met this morning without announcing any action or saying there would be anything done immediately.

However, late today, Chairman Barrett (R-Wyo) announced:

"The subcommittee conferred with Sen. Cordon after Mr. Gard filed the petition and advised him that the committee would proceed with the contest only in the event he joined in the petition.

"Sen. Cordon declined to join in the request and consequently the committee has formally dismissed the Gard petition."

Barrett noted that the subcommittee for years has refused to consider election contests unless they were initiated by a candidate himself.

Slaying Coincidence

PHENIX CITY, Ala., Dec. 3 (AP)—The knife slaying of a witness who may have named Albert L. Patterson's murder was written off by National Guard investigators today as a weird coincidence.

They said a 16-year-old Negro's confession convinced them there was no connection between Johnnie F. Griffin's death last night and his appearance Wednesday before a grand jury investigating the Patterson killing.

The youth, booked as Jerry C. Washington, was held in jail on a murder charge.

Freed In Stabbing

BALTIMORE, Dec. 3 (AP)—A 16-year-old grocery clerk charged with fatally stabbing a holdup man was cleared today on the ground of justifiable homicide.

Thomas E. Jordan Jr., was accused of killing Freeman Woods, 34, Negro, after Wood robbed the grocery where the youth worked.

Case Dismissed Against DuPont

Government Didn't Prove Monopoly

CHICAGO, Dec. 3 (AP)—A federal judge today dismissed the government's biggest antitrust case. U. S. Dist. Judge Walter J. LaBuy held the Department of Justice lawyers had failed to prove accusations of conspiracy, monopoly and restraint of trade in a civil suit against E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., members of the DuPont family and their securities holding companies, General Motors Corp. and the United State Rubber Co.

The book value of stock holdings owned by the defendants was estimated by the government several months ago at more than six billion dollars. It has increased since then.

35-Minute Summation

In a 35-minute summation of his 220-page decision before a capacity courtroom crowd which included the 46 lawyers who took part in 102 days of trial, Judge LaBuy said:

"The government has failed to prove conspiracy, monopolization, a restraint of trade, or any reasonable probability of a restraint, and for these reasons, the amended complaint should be dismissed."

In its original complaint, filed in 1949, the government charged that the Du Pont family interests had used their large holdings of General Motors and U.S. Rubber stock to make captive markets for Du Pont products of the big auto and rubber manufacturing concerns.

It asked that the Du Pont interests be ordered to sell their General Motors and U.S. Rubber stocks. The government said the Du Ponts held 23 per cent of General Motors' stock and 17 per cent of that issued by U.S. Rubber.

Defense attorneys contended that the stock in both firms was held because both stocks were good investments. All charges relating to monpoly or restraint of trade were denied.

Sued Under Antitrust Laws

The suit was brought under provisions of the Sherman and Clayton Antitrust Acts. Judge LaBuy held that neither law had been violated, and there was "no need ... to discuss legal principles or precedents ..."

"The essence of the conspiracy and restraint which the government finally charged and sought to prove in this case," Judge LaBuy said, "is the alleged limitation upon General Motor's ability to deal as it pleased with competitors of Du Pont and United States Rubber."

He said the record of the trial showed "the extent to which General Motors enjoyed complete freedom of action with respect to specific products manufatured by Du Pont and United States Rubber, and with respect to its discoveries and developments of new products."

Senate Group Decries Check Put On Mails

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP) — A special Senate committee today strongly condemned a 1952 check-up on Sen. McCarthy's mail, and urged a Justice Department investigation.

The Senate cannot act on the committee's recommendation until it returns in January.

The committee concluded after a one-day closed door hearing that the mail check, which is described as a postoffice investigation technique designed "to aid in the apprehension of fugitives from justice," was set in motion by the rubber-stamped signature of Sen. Hennings (D-Mo).

It said it was convinced this was done without Hennings' knowledge or consent.

The committee, composed of Sens. Ferguson (R-Mich) and George (D-Ga), said it was unable to determine who was responsible for affixing Hennings' facsimile signature to letters to postmasters ordering the mail check. But it said the letters were "initiated" by Paul J. Cotter, who was chief counsel to a Senate Elections subcommittee which was investigating McCarthy's finances, and that the idea was put into effect by staff investigators under Cotter's instructions.

Cotter, a former FBI agent now on the staff of the House Government Operations Committee, has said there was nothing illegal about the use of mail checks by committees. Under such a check postal authorities make a note of the names and addresses of people sending mail to a certain person.

The Ferguson-George committee, in a report filed with the Senate secretary, said it desired to condemn "in strong language" the use of mail checks by a Senate committee or its staff. This applied to investigations not only of senators but of all citizens, they said.

Nebraska Man Is Best Clipper

CHICAGO, Dec. 3 (AP)—A 42-year-old Scottsbluff, Neb., man who has been clipping sheep for 23 years today won the professional sheep shearing contest at the International Livestock Exposition.

Joe Loomis beat a bunch of old pros with a score of 93.9 per cent, judged on speed, technique and quality of workmanship. His best time for clipping one of three sheep was 2 minutes, 41 seconds.

Virginia youths captured first and second place in the amateur 4-H Club shearing contest.

First was Harold Hotinger, 20, of Lexington, Va., with a 93.933 score. Hotinger barely made the finals, having tied for eighth place in the preliminaries. He had to shear an extra sheep in the preliminaries to win a place in the eight-man finals.

Second was Lawrence Crawford, 19, of Proffit, Va., with 92.367. Other place winners in the 4-H contest included:

Randall C. Cutlip, Hillsboro, W. Va., third.

Demos Toss Out "Loyalty Oath"

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 3 (AP)—Democrats tossed out their controversial "loyalty oath" in a harmony move tonight but they remained widely split over the choice of a successor to retiring National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell.

An advisory committee of 69 reached general agreement in a closed session that no personal pledge of party loyalty will be required of delegates to the 1956 presidential nominating convention.

The three top candidates—none of whom appeared as yet able to command the 53 votes necessary for election in the roll call showdown scheduled tomorrow afternoon—are Paul M. Butler, Indiana national committeeman; James Finnegan, president of the Philadelphia City Council; and Michael V. DiSalle of Ohio, former price administrator.

Doctors Say Pontiff Has "Improved"

Condition "Serious" However, As Famed Surgeons Consult

VATICAN CITY, Saturday, Dec. 4 (AP)—Two famous physicians who examined Pope Pius XII said early today he no longer is in a desperate condition but still is seriously ill.

Dr. Luigi Vittorio de Stefano said shortly after he and four other medical experts had engaged in an emergency consultation over the ailing 78-year-old pontiff: "I believe that he is no more in imminent danger of death."

The noted Italian surgeon, Prof. Raffaele Paolucci di Valmaggiore, agreed in a separate interview.

Dr. de Stefano said, however, that the Pope barely escaped death Thursday when he suffered a collapse.

A brief special bulletin prepared earlier by all five of the consultants said a "perceptible improvement verified today has continued in such a manner as to permit good hope" that the leader of 425 million Roman Catholics would survive this, his most desperate illness.

Heart Holding Up

Dr. de Stefano said the Pope's heart was holding up well.

"Certainly," he said, "if his heart had been weaker there would have been a chance that yesterday's — Thursday's — collapse could have been fatal."

The official early Saturday statement at the Vatican press office said:

"At the request of the pontifical physician, Prof. Riccardo Galeazzi-Lisi, a consultation has taken place in which have participated: Prof. Raffaele Paolucci di Valmaggiore, Prof. Antonio Gasbarrini, Dr. Paul Niehans and Dr. Luivi Vittorio de Stefano.

"The doctors were able to ascertain that the perceptible improvement which manifested itself this morning has been continuing in such a way as to leave good hope."

The doctors, aside from Swiss Dr. Niehans, were described as Italy's leading specialists.

Reports at midnight said the gathering of doctors might be considering the possibility of surgery.

An official Vatican spokesman said that when the consulting physicians came out of the Pope's apartment they seemed relieved and that, in particular, Prof. Galeazzi-Lisi appeared more hopeful.

Reporters Are Summoned

Reporters waiting in St. Peter's Square after the Vatican closed were summoned back for the special statement.

Despite the official statement, a medical source said that as the Pope went through the second night of the worst health crisis in the 16 years of his pontificate, his condition was "not good."

Informed sources said it was first believed when the Pope suf-

Milk And Dairy Products Comprise Ike's Luncheon

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—President Eisenhower tossed a stag luncheon at the White House today to promote the sale of milk and dairy products.

He invited 19 guests, including Secretary of Agriculture Benson and the heads of several dairy and milk organizations.

Here is the menu:

Oyster soup in a milk base, crackers, rock fish based in milk, escalloped potatoes in milk, chinese cabbage baked in milk, tossed salad, applie pie and cheese.

To top it all off, the President ordered out the White House 12 oz. glasses for a generous serving of milk to wash it down.

U. S. Troops Plan Parties For Children

BERLIN, Dec. 3 (AP)—American garrison troops in isolated Berlin will inaugurate a round of Christmas parties Dec. 16 for 1,800 German orphans and 4,500 refugee children from the Soviet zone.

The annual "Operation Cheer," started in 1945, will continue for a week with parties for groups of 500 to 750 children each in Berlin command mess halls.

Man Kissed Wife Goodbye, Killed Her With Cleaver

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 3 (AP)—Raymond Wilson said he kissed his invalid wife and told her, "Goodbye sweetheart."

Then the 65-year-old butcher hacked her to death with a meat cleaver, dismembered her body and burned the remains in the furnace, Det. Capt. John Sweeny quoted him as saying today.

Sweeny said the short, stocky Wilson, displaying little emotion, told him that he killed his wife, Ethel, 67, with her consent to end her pain from the effects of a stroke and an eye disease.

Wilson was held without charge.

Ethel was his second wife, wed to him only last year. His first wife, Bertha, died Aug. 26, 1953, apparently of a heart attack.

Wilson said he killed Ethel as she took a bath Monday night after they had talked about high hospital bills and her pain, the detective related. Wilson insisted his wife pleaded with him to end her sufferings and that they even discussed her funeral arrangements, Sweeny stated, but that after she was dead Wilson decided to dispose of the body himself.

But Sweeny also said a doctor who had been treating both Wilson and his wife told police that Wilson was mentally deranged and "not fit to live in society."

Warmer In Jail, Man Breaks Window

ARLINGTON, Va. Dec. 3 (AP)—Milton Payton, 22, is warm and snug today—in the Arlington jail.

He shattered a plate glass window in a shoe store early this morning. Then he went to the nearest police call box and asked officers to come and get him. He said he was cold and had no place to go.

College Dean Of Women Set To Play In Musical Comedy

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The dean of women at American University is taking a leave of absence to play a song and dance role in a musical comedy.

"Making the decision was a little difficult," Marguerite Shaw confessed today. "I was a little worried about the reaction in the supposedly austere academic circles."

But, she added with a bright smile, "the reaction wasn't at all like that. Everybody wished me well. Academic circles aren't as austere as you'd imagine."

Miss Shaw, a resident of South Paris, Me., has never before acted professionally. She did dramatic work at Bates College in Maine and played for two seasons with a Little Theater group in Portland, Me.

But she's all signed up, nevertheless, to go on a nationwide tour as Mabel, the bookkeeper, in the national company of "The Pajama Game," a musical which has been playing to full houses on Broadway.

"I'm a little surprised—a little overwhelmed," Miss Shaw said. "But I know it'll be fun."

Her great thespian opportunity was provided by her sister, Reta Shaw, who is playing Mabel in the Broadway play now. Reta told her the producers were having trouble casting the role and Marguerite suggested — "facetiously," she said — that she'd try out.

Sure enough she did and sure enough she landed the part. It's a comedy part with one big song and dance number. "I'm a little young for the part," Miss Shaw said. "The woman is 50 or 60 and I'll have to gray my hair."

Miss Shaw sidestepped a direct question about her age. She looked to be about 35. A plump smiling woman, she has been associate dean of students at American University for a year and a half.

Ousted Workers For UN Will Be Paid Damages

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Dec. 3 (AP)—The United States bowed today to a World Court decision upholding payment by the U.N. of $179,420 in damages to 11 American staff members fired after U.S. loyalty inquiries.

Sen. James W. Fulbright (D-Ark), representing the United States in the Budget Committee here, voiced the administration stand that the United States still dissented from the view that the fired personnel ought to be paid or that the U.N. Assembly had to follow without question the rulings of the U.N. administrative tribunal.

Then Fulbright added: "My delegation is prepared to respect the authority and competence of the International Court of Justice. Therefore, having stated our legal views with particular reference to the various opinions of the judges of the court, we believe it should not be necessary to renew arguments which were fully heard before the court."

Some congressmen and some organizations have voiced opinions that the wage indemnities should not be paid.

The court at The Hague ruled 9-3 last July that the General Assembly had no right to refuse to pay any awards ordered by the U.N. administrative tribunal if a staff member was fired and appealed.

Fulbright told the committee that the discharged employes were fired "after they refused to answer questions put to them by competent investigative authorities of the U.S. government.

"The questions related to membership in the Communist party or subversive activities against the United States. The staff members pleaded that under the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution they were privileged not to answer because the answers might tend to incriminate them."

The biggest single award was ordered to Jack Harris, 42, former Trusteeship Council expert on Africa and wartime OSS "cloak and dagger" agent, who was awarded $40,000.

The number of district offices is being reduced from 15 to 11 by abolishing the Honolulu, Los Angeles, Baltimore and St. Albans, Vt. districts. They will be replaced by suboffices.

Antalya newspapers said he recieved 44 answers.

Parolees Caught Without Battle

ISLETA PUEBLO, N.M., Dec. 3 (AP)—Tracked down by bloodhounds, two young California parolees charged in the slaying of an Albuquerque policeman surrendered today without a fight.

State Police Chief Joe Roach said the captives, found armed and hiding in a ditch, were positively identified as James Church Isted, 22, and Lawrence J. Snow, 21.

When four officers approached their hiding place, led by the eager dogs, the two stepped out with their hands high.

"We're the men you're looking for," Isted said. They threw down their guns a .45 automatic and a Mauser pistol.

Isted, after being taken to the Albuquerque jail, admitted firing eight shots in the gun battle Wednesday morning, Asst. Police Chief Frank Doyle said.

Isted and Snow had been hunted since the early Wednesday morning gun battle in which Patrolman Frank Sjolander, 28, was killed and Patrolman Eugene Casey, 30, critically wounded.

James Leroy Spahr, 21, who opened fire on Sjolander and Casey, was shot and killed by the officers as they fell.

Oregon Recount Action Dropped By Senate Group

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Sen. Cordon (R-Ore) declined today to go along with a demand for a recount in his election loss to Democrat Richard L. Neuberger and the case was promptly dropped.

It was Neuberger's narrow victory in Oregon, the last of the Nov. 2 elections to be decided, that gave the Democrats their one-vote edge for organizing the New Senate in January.

The demand for a recount came from Jess J. Gard, Republican national committeeman for Oregon, who said he was acting as a private citizen.

"Less than half of one per cent separated the two candidates," Gard told a reporter. "There could be a mistake."

Latest figures showed Neuberger with 285,775 votes to 283,313 for Cordon, a margin of 2,462.

Cordon, who has been a senator for 10 years, said in a statement:

"Although importuned by a great number of my friends and supporters in Oregon to file a contest of the recent election, because of many unusual situations which developed therein, I feel there is no legal ground for such action.

"I shall not contest the election."

Gard's petition was filed with the Elections subcommittee of the Senate Rules Committee. Sen. Hayden (D-Ariz) of the committee said Gard reported there were numerous irregularities in Multnomah County, which includes the city of Portland, and, "Cordon got a raw deal."

The subcommittee met this morning without announcing any action or saying there would be anything done immediately.

However, late today, Chairman Barrett (R-Wyo) announced:

"The subcommittee conferred with Sen. Cordon after Mr. Gard filed the petition and advised him that the committee would proceed with the contest only in the event he joined in the petition.

"Sen. Cordon declined to join in the request and consequently the committee has formally dismissed the Gard petition."

Barrett noted that the subcommittee for years has refused to consider election contests unless they were initiated by a candidate himself.

Slaying Coincidence

PHENIX CITY, Ala., Dec. 3 (AP)—The knife slaying of a witness who may have named Albert L. Patterson's murder was written off by National Guard investigators today as a weird coincidence.

They said a 16-year-old Negro's confession convinced them there was no connection between Johnnie F. Griffin's death last night and his appearance Wednesday before a grand jury investigating the Patterson killing.

The youth, booked as Jerry C. Washington, was held in jail on a murder charge.

Freed In Stabbing

BALTIMORE, Dec. 3 (AP)—A 16-year-old grocery clerk charged with fatally stabbing a holdup man was cleared today on the ground of justifiable homicide.

Thomas E. Jordan Jr., was accused of killing Freeman Woods, 34, Negro, after Wood robbed the grocery where the youth worked.

Case Dismissed Against DuPont

Government Didn't Prove Monopoly

CHICAGO, Dec. 3 (AP)—A federal judge today dismissed the government's biggest antitrust case. U. S. Dist. Judge Walter J. LaBuy held the Department of Justice lawyers had failed to prove accusations of conspiracy, monopoly and restraint of trade in a civil suit against E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., members of the DuPont family and their securities holding companies, General Motors Corp. and the United State Rubber Co.

The book value of stock holdings owned by the defendants was estimated by the government several months ago at more than six billion dollars. It has increased since then.

35-Minute Summation

In a 35-minute summation of his 220-page decision before a capacity courtroom crowd which included the 46 lawyers who took part in 102 days of trial, Judge LaBuy said:

"The government has failed to prove conspiracy, monopolization, a restraint of trade, or any reasonable probablity of a restraint, and for these reasons, the amended complaint should be dismissed."

In its original complaint, filed in 1949, the government charged that the Du Pont family interests had used their large holdings of General Motors and U.S. Rubber stock to make captive markets for Du Pont products of the big auto and rubber manufacturing concerns.

It asked that the Du Pont interests be ordered to sell their General Motors and U.S. Rubber stocks. The government said the Du Ponts held 23 per cent of General Motors' stock and 17 per cent of that issued by U.S. Rubber.

Defense attorneys contended that the stock in both firms was held because both stocks were good investments. All charges relating to monpoly or restraint of trade were denied.

Sued Under Antitrust Laws

The suit was brought under provisions of the Sherman and Clayton Antitrust Acts. Judge LaBuy held that neither law had been violated, and there was "no need ... to discuss legal principles or precedents ..."

"The essence of the conspiracy and restraint which the government finally charged and sought to prove in this case," Judge LaBuy said, "is the alleged limitation upon General Motor's ability to deal as it pleased with competitors of Du Pont and United States Rubber."

He said the record of the trial showed "the extent to which General Motors enjoyed complete freedom of action with respect to specific products manufatured by Du Pont and United States Rubber, and with respect to its discoveries and developments of new products."

Senate Group Decries Check Put On Mails

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP) — A special Senate committee today strongly condemned a 1952 check-up on Sen. McCarthy's mail, and urged a Justice Department investigation.

The Senate cannot act on the committee's recommendation until it returns in January.

The committee concluded after a one-day closed door hearing that the mail check, which is described as a postoffice investigation technique designed "to aid in the apprehension of fugitives from justice," was set in motion by the rubber-stamped signature of Sen. Hennings (D-Mo).

It said it was convinced this was done without Hennings' knowledge or consent.

The committee, composed of Sens. Ferguson (R-Mich) and George (D-Ga), said it was unable to determine who was responsible for affixing Hennings' facsimile signature to letters to postmasters ordering the mail check. But it said the letters were "initiated" by Paul J. Cotter, who was chief counsel to a Senate Elections subcommittee which was investigating McCarthy's finances, and that the idea was put into effect by staff investigators under Cotter's instructions.

Cotter, a former FBI agent now on the staff of the House Government Operations Committee, has said there was nothing illegal about the use of mail checks by committees. Under such a check postal authorities make a note of the names and addresses of people sending mail to a certain person.

The Ferguson-George committee, in a report filed with the Senate secretary, said it desired to condemn "in strong language" the use of mail checks by a Senate committee or its staff. This applied to investigations not only of senators but of all citizens, they said.

Nebraska Man Is Best Clipper

CHICAGO, Dec. 3 (AP)—A 42-year-old Scottsbluff, Neb., man who has been clipping sheep for 23 years today won the professional sheep shearing contest at the International Livestock Exposition.

Joe Loomis beat a bunch of old pros with a score of 93.9 per cent, judged on speed, technique and quality of workmanship. His best time for clipping one of three sheep was 2 minutes, 41 seconds.

Virginia youths captured first and second place in the amateur 4-H Club shearing contest.

First was Harold Hotinger, 20, of Lexington, Va., with a 93.933 score. Hotinger barely made the finals, having tied for eighth place in the preliminaries. He had to shear an extra sheep in the preliminaries to win a place in the eight-man finals.

Second was Lawrence Crawford, 19, of Proffit, Va., with 92.367. Other place winners in the 4-H contest included:

Randall C. Cutlip, Hillsboro, W. Va., third.

Demos Toss Out "Loyalty Oath"

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 3 (AP)—Democrats tossed out their controversial "loyalty oath" in a harmony move tonight but they remained widely split over the choice of a successor to retiring National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell.

An advisory committee of 69 reached general agreement in a closed session that no personal pledge of party loyalty will be required of delegates to the 1956 presidential nominating convention.

The three top candidates—none of whom appeared as yet able to command the 53 votes necessary for election in the roll call showdown scheduled tomorrow afternoon—are Paul M. Butler, Indiana national committeeman; James Finnegan, president of the Philadelphia City Council; and Michael V. DiSalle of Ohio, former price administrator.

Doctors Say Pontiff Has "Improved"

Condition "Serious" However, As Famed Surgeons Consult

VATICAN CITY, Saturday, Dec. 4 (AP)—Two famous physicians who examined Pope Pius XII said early today he no longer is in a desperate condition but still is seriously ill.

Dr. Luigi Vittorio de Stefano said shortly after he and four other medical experts had engaged in an emergency consultation over the ailing 78-year-old pontiff: "I believe that he is no more in imminent danger of death."

The noted Italian surgeon, Prof. Raffaele Paolucci di Valmaggiore, agreed in a separate interview.

Dr. de Stefano said, however, that the Pope barely escaped death Thursday when he suffered a collapse.

A brief special bulletin prepared earlier by all five of the consultants said a "perceptible improvement verified today has continued in such a manner as to permit good hope" that the leader of 425 million Roman Catholics would survive this, his most desperate illness.

Heart Holding Up

Dr. de Stefano said the Pope's heart was holding up well.

"Certainly," he said, "if his heart had been weaker there would have been a chance that yesterday's — Thursday's — collapse could have been fatal."

The official early Saturday statement at the Vatican press office said:

"At the request of the pontifical physician, Prof. Riccardo Galeazzi-Lisi, a consultation has taken place in which have participated: Prof. Raffaele Paolucci di Valmaggiore, Prof. Antonio Gasbarrini, Dr. Paul Niehans and Dr. Luivi Vittorio de Stefano.

"The doctors were able to ascertain that the perceptible improvement which manifested itself this morning has been continuing in such a way as to leave good hope."

The doctors, aside from Swiss Dr. Niehans, were described as Italy's leading specialists.

Reports at midnight said the gathering of doctors might be considering the possibility of surgery.

An official Vatican spokesman said that when the consulting physicians came out of the Pope's apartment they seemed relieved and that, in particular, Prof. Galeazzi-Lisi appeared more hopeful.

Reporters Are Summoned

Reporters waiting in St. Peter's Square after the Vatican closed were summoned back for the special statement.

Despite the official statement, a medical source said that as the Pope went through the second night of the worst health crisis in the 16 years of his pontificate, his condition was "not good."

Informed sources said it was first believed when the Pope suf-

College Dean Of Women Set To Play In Musical Comedy

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The dean of women at American University is taking a leave of absence to play a song and dance role in a musical comedy.

"Making the decision was a little difficult," Marguerite Shaw confessed today. "I was a little worried about the reaction in the supposedly austere academic circles."

But, she added with a bright smile, "the reaction wasn't at all like that. Everybody wished me well. Academic circles aren't as austere as you'd imagine."

Miss Shaw, a resident of South Paris, Me., has never before acted professionally. She did dramatic work at Bates College in Maine and played for two seasons with a Little Theater group in Portland, Me.

But she's all signed up, nevertheless, to go on a nationwide tour as Mabel, the bookkeeper, in the national company of "The Pajama Game," a musical which has been playing to full houses on Broadway.

"I'm a little surprised—a little overwhelmed," Miss Shaw said. "But I know it'll be fun."

Her great thespian opportunity was provided by her sister, Reta Shaw, who is playing Mabel in the Broadway play now. Reta told her the producers were having trouble casting the role and Marguerite suggested — "facetiously," she said — that she'd try out.

Sure enough she did and sure enough she landed the part. It's a comedy part with one big song and dance number. "I'm a little young for the part," Miss Shaw said. "The woman is 50 or 60 and I'll have to gray my hair."

Miss Shaw sidestepped a direct question about her age. She looked to be about 35. A plump smiling woman, she has been associate dean of students at American University for a year and a half.

Dr. Sheppard's Brother Changes Testimony Under Severe Cross Examination

CLEVELAND, Dec. 3 (AP)—Dr. Stephen Sheppard wavered under stiff cross-examination today. He was forced to take back some of his testimony in defense of his younger brother's life.

After trying to justify testimony he gave earlier in the day about Marilyn Sheppard's July 4 murder, Dr. Steve finally was forced to admit:

"That is not true."

On that note, the trial recessed for its 8th weekend, leaving the jury with the mental image of the dapper, 34-year-old Dr. Steve twisting and turning verbally as a defense witness for his brother, Dr. Samuel Sheppard.

Earlier, Dr. Steve had been forced to back down on a statement that anyone who ever suffered a brain concussion temporarily lost his memory of recent events. He conceded the statement was too broad.

The testimony would have helped the defense explain Dr. Sam's varying version of the slaying of his pregnant, 31-year-old wife. He is on trial for his life in her murder.

The handsome 30-year-old kid brother in a family of osteopaths, Dr. Sam blamed the slaying on a bushy-haired prowler who fled the scene after twice knocking him unconscious and leaving him with a brain concussion and a spinal injury. The state says the injuries were trivial.

As for Dr. Steve's claim his brother was seriously injured by the busy-haired murderer, Assistant Prosecutor Thomas Parrino brought out that Dr. Sam was half dragged 20 or 30 feet past a waiting ambulance with stretchers and put in Dr. Steve's station wagon.

Then, propped up in the car, Dr. Sam was driven at 70 miles an hour, three miles to the family's Bay View Osteopathic Hospital.

Parrino repeatedly asked if that's the way to treat a man with serious brain and spinal injuries. Dr. Steve conceded it wasn't ideal, but he added:

"I did what was most important of all. I took him to the nearest hospital. Frankly, Mr. Parrino, I handled this as I handle 100 concussion cases every year. The idea in every instance is to get them to the hospital as soon as possible."

Mayors Given Roads Program

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—A vast federal highway program to make room for another 27 million cars on the roads in the next 20 years was laid before the conference of mayors today.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, chairman of the President's Advisory Committee on a National Program, said it was proposed that the federal government spend 26 billion dollars over a 10-year period to supplement state and city highway development.

Not only would the plan make for more room on the roads, Clay told the mayors, but it would assist cities in evacuating their populations in the event of atomic attack.

He reported there are now 53 million vehicles on the road and that by 1974 it is anticipated there will be about 80 million.

Federal road-building funds would not be available under the program, Clay said, unless states and cities first guaranteed to go ahead with their own long range plans.

Juvenile Court Judge To Open Trials To Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Judge Edith H. Cockrill agreed today to open juvenile court hearings for news coverage if conditions she specified are accepted by the press.

An announcement said in part: "Under the proposed plan press coverage will be limited to the courtroom proceedings in juvenile cases with the understanding that names, photographs or information identifying individual children or their parents will not be published or released except with the expressed permission of the juvenile court.

"Persons coming before the court will not be interrogated by the press, and representatives of the press may be excluded from specific hearings if in the judgment of the court publicity of any kind would be undesirable due to the nature of such hearings, or would result in undue embarrassment or possibly would have a detrimental effect on the persons involved. Representatives of the press will be excluded from hearings upon the specific request of parents, representatives or counsel of the children involved.

In commenting on the procedure to be followed by the press in juvenile hearings, Judge Cockrill stated that the procedure is in line with nationally accepted methods of press coverage in specialized courts dealing with children.

The proposal followed discussions with the juvenile court advisory committee and with B. M. McKelway, editor of the Washington Star; James Russell Wiggins, managing editor of the Washington Post and Times Herald, and John O'Rourke, editor of the Washington Daily News, Judge Cockrill said.

A study of the conditions is planned by the newspapers.

TOWSON, Md., Dec. 3 (AP)—A Balmore County couple were awarded $100,000 in circuit court here early today on behalf of a 12-year-old son injured in a gasoline tank explosion.

A jury deliberated 10 hours before announcing the award at 1 a. m. for Mr. and Mrs. George M. Brace of Inverness, Md.

Their son Gary was injured March 17, 1950, when the storage tank exploded on a vacant lot. The boy was severely burned and disfigured about the face.

Damages, the highest ever awarded in the county court in a case of this kind, were assessed jointly against the Texas Company, owner of the tank, Forteno and Pitt Pecora, owners of the lot, and Joseph Wielgosz, contractor whose firm had dismantled a service station across the road.

All-Time Tax High Collected

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The federal government collected $69,920,000,000 in taxes during the last fiscal year, an all time high.

The total was reported today by Internal Revnue Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews for the 12 months that ended last June 30. This compared with collections of $69,687,000,000 in the previous year.

New tax cuts and a business dip in the current period, the government estimates, will reduce federal tax collections for the fiscal year ending next June 30 to about $68,228,000,000.

Andrews' report placed individual income and employment taxes collected during the year ending last June at $37,921,000,000, compared with $37,254,000,000 in the preceding fiscal year.

Corporation income and excess profits totaled $21,546,000,000, compared with $21,595,000,000 in the previous year.

Following custom, State headquarters of selective service announced today it will not induct anyone into the service from Dec. 7 to Jan 3. to allow as many men as possible to spend Christmas and New Year's with their families.

New Hospital For Mentally Ill Is Opened At Patuxent

JESSUP, Md., Dec. 3 (AP)—Maryland formally opened the Patuxent Institution today, as the State's four-million-dollar answer to the problem of mentally ill criminals.

The fifth institution in Maryland's prison system, it is expected to receive its first prisoner-patient within a week or so.

The three-story main building looks more like a school than a prison but is classified as "maximum security." There are no gates or high walls, and bars covering the windows are camouflaged so effectively by window paneling they are scarcely noticeable from a distance.

Two types of prisoners—those being examined before passing of sentence, and those found to need mental treatment—will be housed in the institution.

In a speech for the dedication ceremonies Reuben Oppenheimer, Baltimore attorney who headed the State Department of Correction when Patuxent was planned, warned that the institution "will not eradicate the crime among us."

"It cannot cure all those who will be sent to it for treatment," said Oppenheimer ... "But this institution does represent our sober resolve to marshal our resources of skill, training and understanding to study the causes of crime, to cure the defectives who can be cured, and so to prevent future tragedies."

Only two wings were opened. Two others already completed will not be put into service until the number of prisoners exceeds 200.

A $2,200,000 diagnosis center, a $1,900,000 structure for housing and treating psychopaths and a $900,000 main building extension are to be added later.

Doctors Say

fered a collapse Thursday that there was a cancerous mass in his intestine. X-rays taken that day showed this was not so.

But, these sources said, the Pope is still threatened by a perforated ulcer. There was some evidence that this may already have happened. In that event surgery might be essential despite the Pope's extreme weakness.

Last night the Pope was said to have rallied. He was described as greatly comforted by word that millions around the world were praying for his recovery.

He was reported to have called to his bedside two of his chief aids in administration of the church. It was though that he might be considering a call to his cardinals around the world to a consistory that would bring the Sacred College of Cardinals to full strength.

The pontiff summoned Msgr. Giovanni Battista Montini, who often has been mentioned as a possible successor to the papal throne. He also was reported to have called Msgr. Domenico Tardini, another close associate in the Vatican Secretariat of State.

Was Close Advisor

Great significance was attached here to the Pope's summons to Msgr. Montini, who, until his recent appointment as archbishop of Milan, was one of the pontiff's closest advisers in the role of pro-secretary of state for ordinary church affairs. Msgr. Montini, in spiritual retreat for his approaching consecretation as an archbishop, scheduled Dec. 12, was summoned from nearby Galloro monastery and ushered immediately to the pontiff's bedside.

Msgr. Tardini, the Pope's pro-secretary for extraordinary affairs, also was believed to have been summoned. His secretary said he believed the monsignor had a short meeting with the pope and was to confer with him later.

It is incorrect to speak of Russia as "Soviets" since soviet means a governing body.

Retarded Negro Children Will Go To Rosewood

CROWNSVILLE, Md., Dec. 3 (AP)—Dr. Clifton T. Perkins says the transfer of mentally retarded Negro children from Crownsville State Hospital to Rosewood Training School will begin "as soon as possible."

The State mental hygiene commissioner made the remark after he was told by Gov. McKeldin, "If we have the right to transfer them, we ought to do it."

The 1953 General Assembly approved the transfer, but it was fought by parents of white children at the Reisterstown institution.

Represented by attorney Ernest C. Trimble, the parents filed an injunction seeking to block the transfer in January of 1953.

When he learned of the governor's comment and Dr. Perkins' statement, Trimble said today the suit might be revived. He said he was waiting for the attorney general's office to answer a series of questions he had posed 23 months ago as part of his suit.

McKeldin urged Dr. Perkins to get on with the transfer during a tour of the overcrowded institution yesterday.

Perkins said he had delayed the transfers under the mistaken idea that the injunction suit prevented them. However, Assistant Attorney General W. Giles Parker has said the mere filing of the suit need not hold up the transfers.

"We have some very sick, mentally deficient children at Crownsville who could get the proper kind of care at Rosewood," said Dr. Perkins.

But Leo V. Miller, former president of the Crownsville Board of Managers, was critical of the transfer plan. He said he has never seen conditions at Crownsville "as filthy and degrading" as they are at Rosewood.

The testimony would have helped the defense explain Dr. Sam's varying version of the slaying of his pregnant, 31-year-old wife. He is on trial for his life in her murder.

The handsome 30-year-old kid brother in a family of osteopaths, Dr. Sam blamed the slaying on a bushy-haired prowler who fled the scene after twice knocking him unconscious and leaving him with a brain concussion and a spinal injury. The state says the injuries were trivial.

As for Dr. Steve's claim his brother was seriously injured by the busy-haired murderer, Assistant Prosecutor Thomas Parrino brought out that Dr. Sam was half dragged 20 or 30 feet past a waiting ambulance with stretchers and put in Dr. Steve's station wagon.

Then, propped up in the car, Dr. Sam was driven at 70 miles an hour, three miles to the family's Bay View Osteopathic Hospital.

Parrino repeatedly asked if that's the way to treat a man with serious brain and spinal injuries. Dr. Steve conceded it wasn't ideal, but he added:

"I did what was most important of all. I took him to the nearest hospital. Frankly, Mr. Parrino, I handled this as I handle 100 concussion cases every year. The idea in every instance is to get them to the hospital as soon as possible."

Mayors Given Roads Program

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—A vast federal highway program to make room for another 27 million cars on the roads in the next 20 years was laid before the conference of mayors today.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, chairman of the President's Advisory Committee on a National Program, said it was proposed that the federal government spend 26 billion dollars over a 10-year period to supplement state and city highway development.

Not only would the plan make for more room on the roads, Clay told the mayors, but it would assist cities in evacuating their populations in the event of atomic attack.

He reported there are now 53 million vehicles on the road and that by 1974 it is anticipated there will be about 80 million.

Federal road-building funds would not be available under the program, Clay said, unless states and cities first guaranteed to go ahead with their own long range plans.

Juvenile Court Judge To Open Trials To Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Judge Edith H. Cockrill agreed today to open juvenile court hearings for news coverage if conditions she specified are accepted by the press.

An announcement said in part:

"Under the proposed plan press coverage will be limited to the courtroom proceedings in juvenile cases with the understanding that names, photographs or information identifying individual children or their parents will not be published or released except with the expressed permission of the juvenile court.

"Persons coming before the court will not be interrogated by the press, and representatives of the press may be excluded from specific hearings if in the judgment of the court publicity of any kind would be undesirable due to the nature of such hearings, or would result in undue embarrassment or possibly would have a detrimental effect on the persons involved. Representatives of the press will be excluded from hearings upon the specific request of parents, representatives or counsel of the children involved.

In commenting on the procedure to be followed by the press in juvenile hearings, Judge Cockrill stated that the procedure is in line with nationally accepted methods of press coverage in specialized courts dealing with children.

The proposal followed discussions with the juvenile court advisory committee and with B. M. McKelway, editor of the Washington Star; James Russell Wiggins, managing editor of the Washington Post and Times Herald, and John O'Rourke, editor of the Washington Daily News, Judge Cockrill said.

A study of the conditions is planned by the newspapers.

Their son Gary was injured March 17, 1950, when the storage tank exploded on a vacant lot. The boy was severely burned and disfigured about the face.

The total was reported today by Internal Revnue Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews for the 12 months that ended last June 30. This compared with collections of $69,687,000,000 in the previous year.

Andrews' report placed individual income and employment taxes collected during the year ending last June at $37,921,000,000, compared with $37,254,000,000 in the preceding fiscal year.

Following custom, State headquarters of selective service announced today it will not induct anyone into the service from Dec. 7 to Jan 3. to allow as many men as possible to spend Christmas and New Year's with their families.

New Hospital For Mentally Ill Is Opened At Patuxent

JESSUP, Md., Dec. 3 (AP)—Maryland formally opened the Patuxent Institution today, as the State's four-million-dollar answer to the problem of mentally ill criminals.

The fifth institution in Maryland's prison system, it is expected to receive its first prisoner-patient within a week or so.

The three-story main building looks more like a school than a prison but is classified as "maximum security." There are no gates or high walls, and bars covering the windows are camouflaged so effectively by window paneling they are scarcely noticeable from a distance.

Two types of prisoners—those being examined before passing of sentence, and those found to need mental treatment—will be housed in the institution.

In a speech for the dedication ceremonies Reuben Oppenheimer, Baltimore attorney who headed the State Department of Correction when Patuxent was planned, warned that the institution "will not eradicate the crime among us."

"It cannot cure all those who will be sent to it for treatment," said Oppenheimer ... "But this institution does represent our sober resolve to marshal our resources of skill, training and understanding to study the causes of crime, to cure the defectives who can be cured, and so to prevent future tragedies."

Only two wings were opened. Two others already completed will not be put into service until the number of prisoners exceeds 200.

A $2,200,000 diagnosis center, a $1,900,000 structure for housing and treating psychopaths and a $900,000 main building extension are to be added later.

Mental Exam Ordered

ROCKVILLE, Dec. 3 (AP)—A mental examination was ordered today for Mrs. Marian Moseley, 15-year-old charged with strangling her six-year-old half-sister.

Largest city in area in the United States is Los Angeles, which covers 450 square miles.

Doctors Say

fered a collapse Thursday that there was a cancerous mass in his intestine. X-rays taken that day showed this was not so.

But, these sources said, the Pope is still threatened by a perforated ulcer. There was some evidence that this may already have happened. In that event surgery might be essential despite the Pope's extreme weakness.

Last night the Pope was said to have rallied. He was described as greatly comforted by word that millions around the world were praying for his recovery.

He was reported to have called to his bedside two of his chief aids in administration of the church. It was though that he might be considering a call to his cardinals around the world to a consistory that would bring the Sacred College of Cardinals to full strength.

The pontiff summoned Msgr. Giovanni Battista Montini, who often has been mentioned as a possible successor to the papal throne. He also was reported to have called Msgr. Domenico Tardini, another close associate in the Vatican Secretariat of State.

Was Close Advisor

Great significance was attached here to the Pope's summons to Msgr. Montini, who, until his recent appointment as archbishop of Milan, was one of the pontiff's closest advisers in the role of pro-secretary of state for ordinary church affairs. Msgr. Montini, in spiritual retreat for his approaching consecretation as an archbishop, scheduled Dec. 12, was summoned from nearby Galloro monastery and ushered immediately to the pontiff's bedside.

Msgr. Tardini, the Pope's pro-secretary for extraordinary affairs, also was believed to have been summoned. His secretary said he believed the monsignor had a short meeting with the pope and was to confer with him later.

It is incorrect to speak of Russia as "Soviets" since soviet means a governing body.

Retarded Negro Children Will Go To Rosewood

CROWNSVILLE, Md., Dec. 3 (AP)—Dr. Clifton T. Perkins says the transfer of mentally retarded Negro children from Crownsville State Hospital to Rosewood Training School will begin "as soon as possible."

The State mental hygiene commissioner made the remark after he was told by Gov. McKeldin, "If we have the right to transfer them, we ought to do it."

The 1953 General Assembly approved the transfer, but it was fought by parents of white children at the Reisterstown institution.

Represented by attorney Ernest C. Trimble, the parents filed an injunction seeking to block the transfer in January of 1953.

When he learned of the governor's comment and Dr. Perkins' statement, Trimble said today the suit might be revived. He said he was waiting for the attorney general's office to answer a series of questions he had posed 23 months ago as part of his suit.

McKeldin urged Dr. Perkins to get on with the transfer during a tour of the overcrowded institution yesterday.

Perkins said he had delayed the transfers under the mistaken idea that the injunction suit prevented them. However, Assistant Attorney General W. Giles Parker has said the mere filing of the suit need not hold up the transfers.

"We have some very sick, mentally deficient children at Crownsville who could get the proper kind of care at Rosewood," said Dr. Perkins.

But Leo V. Miller, former president of the Crownsville Board of Managers, was critical of the transfer plan. He said he has never seen conditions at Crownsville "as filthy and degrading" as they are at Rosewood.

Y Auxiliary Has Birthday Service

A birthday service for the Infant Jesus featured the program of the annual Christmas party of the Central YMCA Auxiliary held Thursday evening in conjunction with the meeting.

Mrs. George Zimmerman opened the meeting reading a Christmas poem. Mrs. James Fatkin led the devotions, found in St. Luke's Chapter 2, verses 8-22 inclusive. This was followed by a prayer and a poem taken from "The Vision of Sir Launfall." The cake for the birthday service was later presented to Winfield Adam, Y secretary, to be given to his wife and children.

During the business session Mrs. Zimmerman reported on Highway Safety as outlined at the White House conference. Women drivers were asked to cooperate in safe driving, especially December 15, which has been designated as Safe Driving Day. Board Terms Collection Of County Taxes Costly

A change in the method of collecting Allegany County taxes appears to be in the offing, according to statements made by the county commissioners.

The old Board of Commissioners last week passed a resolution calling for a centralized tax office and a collector on a salary rather than having three on a commission basis.

The commissioners agree that the present system is costing the county a great deal of money.

Four-Year Check

A check of the county books shows that in the past four years it has cost the county a total of $165,609.22 to collect its taxes.

The city of Cumberland in 1951 realized it was costing too much for tax collection on a commission basis such as the county has. In fact it is saving from $7,000 to $8,000 a year.

The method was changed to have a collector under Civil Service and on a flat salary. Formerly the city collector received one per cent of all money collected.

From the gross of the one per cent he paid for his stamps and printing, but the city furnished equipment maintenance, the salary for an assistant collector, and quarters, plus light and heat.

Different Percentages

The county collector in District 1 gets one per cent of all his collections; but the collectors at Frostburg and Lonaconing get three per cent.

This all means that today it costs the county nearly twice as much to operate its tax collection agency as does the city of Cumberland.

For instance, it cost the City of Cumberland $11,812 to collect $1,448,722 in taxes during the fiscal year 1953-54.

During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1953, the cost of collecting $3,017,056 in county taxes amounted to $45,480.

The city's figure will remain constant as the salary of the tax collector will stay at the same level, but the county figure will increase as the tax base increases.

Could Collect More

The city tax office could collect much more taxes without any increase in overhead, it is claimed.

County officials pointed out that it takes from six to seven years to collect all of the taxes during the four-year term of a county tax collector.

So the $165,609.22 total for the present four-year collection period will be increased during the next two years as back taxes are paid.

Here is the gross money received by Tax Collector Ernest B. Treat during the past four fiscal years:

1951	$22,710.56
1952	23,023.72
1953	23,868.42
1954	18,661.16 (not complete)
Total	$88,863.86

Out of this money, Treat has to pay for his assistant's salary, wages of extra clerks; postage, tax billing, printing, stationery, legal expenses and any other miscellaneous expenses that his office may incur.

The collectorship at Frostburg held by Thomas McMorran has netted him the following gross receipts:

1951	$7,955.68
1952	7,816.28
1953	9,004.20
1954	6,745.28
Total	$31,521.44

At Lonaconing the tax collector, James Park, has received the following:

1951	$11,314.05
1952	11,295.38
1953	12,608.23
1954	10,006.26
Total	$45,223.92

The previous four years with W. A. Strother as collector in Cumberland, Herbert Loar in Frostburg, and Thomas Taylor in Lonaconing the figures were:

	Strother	Loar	Taylor
1947	17,557.92	5,769.58	8,155.93
1948	17,830.46	6,577.59	8,819.43
1949	18,992.58	6,595.59	9,355.25
1950	19,193.26	6,670.80	9,778.35
Totals	73,594.22	25,613.84	36,108.96

This means that that four-year period between 1946 and 1950 cost the county $135,317.02 to collect its taxes.

While the city pays only $12,000 a year for its tax collection of roughly $1,500,000, the county has been paying roughly $41,400 to collect a little over $3,100,000.

That means that it costs nearly twice as much to collect a million dollars as it does the city.

Computed exactly, the city pays .815 of one per cent of the overall receipts to collect and the county 1.464 per cent of the overall total.

Wilkinson Seeking Financial Data

C. N. "Jerry" Wilkinson, who assumed office yesterday as a member of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners asked Mrs. Johanna Sills, county auditor, for a number of financial reports when the board meets next Thursday.

Wilkinson asked for the amount paid to J. Walker Chapman, county roads supervisor, during the past four years. He also asked the amount which Ernest B. Treat, county tax collector for District 1 at the Court House, earned in commissions for collecting taxes during the past four years.

Treat then asked Mrs. Sills for the amount paid in her department.

Wilkinson also inquired if the report could contain a contrast with the amounts paid in the four-year period prior to that time.

There's plenty of frivolity in fashions to wear during the holiday season.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

The lightheartedness of the holiday season is expressed even in the clothes that you wear...what else is so frivolous and gay as a party dress!

If you have holiday fashions in mind, don't wait too long to make a choice — or party day will arrive and you'll be without time to shop sensibly.

For the tall slender figure, my stylist advises a scoop-necked blouse and a full skirt, or a dress with semi-fitted torso and low flare. Attention may be directed to the hipline of a formal dress, short or long, by drapes that curve around to tie at the back. Though tall, you can wear such a dress with its lowered waistline, when there is fullness to reduce height.

A tall figure that's not so slender will be slimmed in one of the shirtwaist styles for evening. You won't want a brilliant color, or a light blouse and dark skirt that cut your figure in half...choose a soft blue or gray, perhaps, with a deep-plunging collar that lessens the roundness of your contours.

The average figure offers no problem in selecting from the variety of holiday fashions, except that the dress catching your eye must also flatter by its prefect fit. In short dresses, you might like a sleeveless red sheath patterned with silver threads, or a long-torso top of metallic fabric flaring at the hipline into a layered net skirt. An elegant satin sheath, with drape starting at the hipline in front and dipping in back, would be an admirable choice among the ultra-formal fashions.

The short figure, needing an illusion of height, will look nicest in a dressed-up shirtwaist with slim lines and monotone color (if you're plump), or a princess style with easy flare if your figure needs filling out as well as lengthing).

My holiday expert summarizes holiday fashions this way: Generally, the waistline is lowered, so hips are a focal point don't fit them tightly if your own hipline is full; many decolletages are cut high and straight, and the bustline is less exaggerated; skirts are full, but the fullness begins low — developing from the hipline rather than the waist.

Notice that she says generally. Not all dresses follow these lines, nor should you adopt them unless your figure has an affinity for the long-torso look. Any silhouette is smart only if it flatters the woman who wears it.

"WHAT'S YOUR LINE?" — Horizontal, vertical and diagonal lines make a world of difference in what clothing will do for (or to) your figure! This "P.S." gives you complete information on handling lines to your own best advantage. If you have holiday fashions in mind, don't wait too long to make a choice — or party day will arrive and you'll be without time to shop sensibly.

For the tall slender figure, my stylist advises a scoop-necked blouse and a full skirt, or a dress with semi-fitted torso and low flare. Attention may be directed to the hipline of a formal dress, short or long, by drapes that curve around to tie at the back. Though tall, you can wear such a dress, shirtwaist styles for evening. You won't want a brilliant color, or a light blouse and dark skirt that cut your figure in half...choose a soft blue or gray, perhaps, with a deep-plunging collar that lessens the roundness of your contours.

The average figure offers no problem in selecting from the variety of holiday fashions, except that the dress catching your eye must also flatter by its prefect fit. In short dresses, you might like a sleeveless red sheath patterned with silver threads, or a long-torso top of metallic fabric flaring at the hipline into a layered net skirt. An elegant satin sheath, with drape starting at the hipline in front and dipping in back, would be an admirable choice among the ultra-formal fashions.

The short figure, needing an illusion of height, will look nicest in a dressed-up shirtwaist with slim lines and monotone color (if you're plump), or a princess style with easy flare if your figure needs filling out as well as lengthing).

My holiday expert summarizes holiday fashions this way: Generally, the waistline is lowered, so hips are a focal point don't fit them tightly if your own hipline is full; many decolletages are cut high and straight, and the bustline is less exaggerated; skirts are full, but the fullness begins low — developing from the hipline rather than the waist.

Notice that she says generally. Not all dresses follow these lines, nor should you adopt them unless your figure has an affinity for the long-torso look. Any silhouette is smart only if it flatters the woman who wears it.

"WHAT'S YOUR LINE?" — Horizontal, vertical and diagonal lines make a world of difference in what clothing will do for (or to) your figure! This "P.S." gives you complete information on handling lines to your own best advantage. Write to Secrets of Charm in care of this newspaper, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed return envelope for a copy of WHAT'S YOUR LINE?

Retirement Law Changes Cited

James E. Robertson, manager of the Cumberland district office for the Social Security Administration, yesterday announced some of the amendments to the law affecting workers just brought under coverage of the law.

Robertson has just returned from an inter-regional conference of Social Security officials at Savannah, Ga. He explained that the 1954 amendments to the act affect nine out of 10 workers in the country today.

Greatest impact in the Cumberland area of the new law, effective January 1, will be felt by farm operators. Changes in the law will also affect farm laborers, professionally self-employed (excluding physicians, dentists, osteopaths, veterinarians, chiropractors, naturopaths and optometrists), clergymen, and domestic employes.

Robertson urged all workers, whether approaching retirement age or not, to acquaint themselves with the changes in the law which means better protection to the survivors of qualified workers as well as higher benefits for those retiring now.

For complete information on Social Security matters, Robertson suggests interested persons to call at his office in the Post Office building from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. from Monday through Friday.

Youth Given Jail Term, Appeal Made

Paul Gordon, 19-year-old Rawlings youth, was fined $125 and costs yesterday by Trial Magistrate Donald W. Mason on charges of driving on a revoked license and displaying a revoked registration on one vehicle which had been issued to another automobile.

The youth was also sentenced to 30 days in the county jail, the sentence being mandatory on the second conviction of operating on a revoked license. Gordon entered an appeal on the charge through his attorney, Edward J. Ryan.

Squirrels Aplenty

ASHEVILLE, N. C. (AP) — More than 6,000 squirrels were killed during the first week of the season in the Pisgah Game Preserve, Wayne Wiggins, refuge supervisor, reported.

"Still," he said, "the woods are full of 'em. There are more of the creatures than any time I can remember."

Retirement Law Changes Cited

James E. Robertson, manager of the Cumberland district office for the Social Security Administration, yesterday announced some of the amendments to the law affecting workers just brought under coverage of the law.

Robertson has just returned from an inter-regional conference of Social Security officials at Savannah, Ga. He explained that the 1954 amendments to the act affect nine out of 10 workers in the country today.

Greatest impact in the Cumberland area of the new law, effective January 1, will be felt by farm operators. Changes in the law will also affect farm laborers, professionally self-employed (excluding physicians, dentists, osteopaths, veterinarians, chiropractors, naturopaths and optometrists), clergymen, and domestic employes.

Robertson urged all workers, whether approaching retirement age or not, to acquaint themselves with the changes in the law which means better protection to the survivors of qualified workers as well as higher benefits for those retiring now.

For complete information on Social Security matters, Robertson suggests interested persons to call at his office in the Post Office building from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. from Monday through Friday.

Youth Given Jail Term, Appeal Made

Paul Gordon, 19-year-old Rawlings youth, was fined $125 and costs yesterday by Trial Magistrate Donald W. Mason on charges of driving on a revoked license and displaying a revoked registration on one vehicle which had been issued to another automobile.

The youth was also sentenced to 30 days in the county jail, the sentence being mandatory on the second conviction of operating on a revoked license. Gordon entered an appeal on the charge through his attorney, Edward J. Ryan.

Squirrels Aplenty

ASHEVILLE, N. C. (AP) — More than 6,000 squirrels were killed during the first week of the season in the Pisgah Game Preserve, Wayne Wiggins, refuge supervisor, reported.

"Still," he said, "the woods are full of 'em. There are more of the creatures than any time I can remember."

Insurance Group Installs Holzshu As President

J. Henry Holzshu, this city, was installed as president of the Allegany-Garrett Association of Insurance Agents during a recent meeting at the Fort Cumberland Hotel.

He succeeds Thomas F. Conlon Jr., who has been elected a director of the Maryland Association of Insurance Agents, of which the two-county group is a co-extensive board.

John E. Geare was named vice president and Bert J. Graham, secretary-treasurer, succeeding Naoma M. Flanagan, of Westernport.

Columbus K. Oakley, Baltimore, executive secretary-treasurer of the Maryland Association of Insurance Agents, spoke on plans for a state-wide highway safety campaign next year, and the local organization pledged its support.

James B. Reinhart, this city Daniel W. Hershberger, Grantsville, Conlon, and Miss Flanagan attended an advance meeting on this matter in Baltimore during October.

Also discussed was next year's annual Maryland Convention, which will be held here October 16-18. It was pointed out that the Maryland Fire Underwriters Rating Bureau published recently its approval of the additional fire hydrants in the LaVale section.

These hydrants were not approved when they were installed because of lack of water pressure. The area consists of Allgany Grove, Braddock Road section between Vocke Road and Winchester Road, LaVale section (west to intersection of Route 40 and Winchester Road. Vocke Road section between the National Pike and Braddock Road and Zeller's Addition.

Protected rates are effective March 4, 1954 for buildings within 600 feet of one of these approved fire hydrants.

City Buys Property Along Water Street

Deeds for 12 properties purchased by the Mayor and City Council along the north side of Water Street in conjunction with the current flood control program have been filed for record in the office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court.

Total purchase price for the 12 tracts was $87,520, ranging from a high of $14,750 to a low of $175.

Also recorded yesterday was the sale of property along the southeast side of Bedford Road in Election District 23 by Stephen H. Wandless to Betty J. (Getty) Lepley and Donald K. Lepley.

'Messiah' To Be Presented Monday

The 15th annual presentation of "The Messiah" by the Cumberland Choral Society will be sung Monday evening at Allegany High School, beginning at 8 o'clock.

Dress rehearsal will be at 2 p. m. Sunday.

John Laderoute, tenor; Ella Cleveland, soprano, and Alice Remler, contralto, will be soloists. Charles I. Sager is director with Mrs. Kenneth F. Beck organist and Mrs. Robert Gormer, pianist.

Youth Will Observe Bible Sunday Here

The Allegany County Hi-Y Council will meet tomorrow at 2 p. m. for Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y members and their friends in Central YMCA to commemorate World Wide Bible Sunday.

Miss Judy Cooper, 516 Conrad Avenue, program chairman, has obtained Rev. Harold May, assistant pastor of Centre Street Methodist Church, as speaker.

The Y will also be open to a meeting at 3:30 p. m. Sunday of the 25 county delegates to the Hagerstown Co-Ed Conference of Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y Clubs of Central Atlantic Area (South).

John E. Harris Wins National Sales Award

John E. Harris, Bedford Road, has been notified that he won fifth prize amounting to $332.31 plus a weekend holiday at the Great Oak Lodge, Great Oak, Md., in sales competition in a nationwide sales contest.

Harris is employed as a salesman of doors and windows by Rusco Window and Supply Company, distributors of doors, windows and metal awnings.

About 10,000 salesmen competed in the sales contest. First prize of $1,000 went to Kenneth Combs of St. Paul, Minn. Second prize of $390.95 went to Alex Youngbeck of Cleveland, Ohio.

Third place money of $371.40, went to Ivar Grumdahl, of St. Paul. Fourth money of $351.86 was awarded to Ted Stoller of Moorehead, Minn.

The contest covered a six-weeks period with Rusco appropriating $1 for each door sold, and the distributor adding another dollar. It was from this fund that prizes were paid. A total of 20 salesmen in various parts of the country received cash awards, the lowest being $50.82.

Allan Staggers, manager of the local Rusco store, said Harris has been employed by his firm for about two years and formerly worked at the Celanese Corporation plant here.

Ethics To Be Discussed

The Western Maryland Chiropractic Association will meet this evening at the office of Dr. Boyd Mertens, 151 Bedford Street. The meeting will deal exclusively with ethics.

County Road

roads the gasoline tax money which it now turns over to the State Roads Commission.

Increase pensions for school teachers paid by the county by a flat $25 per month and also seek to have their state pensions increased.

Place all Allegany County employes under the provisions of Social Security.

Put the Allegany County Hospital and Infirmary, and Sylvan Retreat under the supervision of qualified superintendents who have had at least ten years of experience in such work.

Change the existing law requiring advertisement for bids on county purchases costing over $1,000, so that bids would be required on purchases costing over $200, in order to give all firms an equal opportunity to bid on county business.

Backs Zoning Law

Have the county commissioners pass a zoning law to promote the health, safety, moral and general welfare of the county citizens. The law would be similar to Ordinance 1776 of the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland.

Some of the resolutions can be accomplished only by introduction of new bills by Senator Robert B. Kimble and the county delegation, and enactment by the General Assembly, Wilkinson said in his statement, and he moved that the board seek the passage of necessary legislation.

In his other resolution, he moved that the board hold up any action on the resolution it passed last week seeking the repeal of the two tax exemption laws until a report is made by the Industrial Promotion Committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

He also said action should be held up until the industrial promotion group can meet with the commissioners to consider a solution that would be equitable to the taxpayers and at the same time encourage industry to locate here and induce existing industry to expand.

Truck Will Pickup Relief Collections

A truck from the New Windsor Church World Service Center will be here Monday to pick up articles for shipment to distressed people overseas.

Food, clothing and fats for soap making will be collected at Living Stone Church of the Brethren and First Presbyterian Church. Contributions will be received at both churches until Monday.

Trailer Upsets, Driver Injured

A Hagerstown area tractor trailer operator was admitted Thursday to Memorial Hospital, Winchester, Va., after his vehicle wrecked on Route 50 near Pleasant Dale, W. Va.

Hospital attaches identifed the injured man as Mayo C. Barnett, RD 1, Williamsport and listed his injuries as a fractured clavicle and contusions of the chest and both legs. His condition last night was termed "satisfactory."

West Virginia State Trooper G. H. Phillips, who investigated, said Barnett was driving a van load of steel which shifted as the rig rounded a curve. The tractor-trailer turned onto its left side after the steel shifted, skidded across the highway and rammed into an embankment.

Trooper Phillips said Barnett was pinned in the wreckage for over an hour before he could be freed, mainly because there was no wrecker-car in the Romney area big enough to handle the tractor trailer.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at a minimum of $5,000 by the investigating officer. Trooper Phillips said Route 50 was partially blocked overnight by the wreckage, adding that a large wrecker was due yesterday from Winchester to clear the highway.

John Humbird PTA Will Meet Tuesday

The John Humbird School Parent-Teacher Association will meet Tuesday night at the school.

Room visitation is planned at 7:30 p. m. and the general meeting will get under way at 8 p. m.

The program will include accordion music by the Smith Triplets and selections by the Fort Hill High School a capella choir.

New Project Adopted For Blood Program

The adoption of a new project by the board of governors of the National Red Cross should be an additional incentive to residents of this area for the support of the county Red Cross Chapter's free blood program.

The board recently recommended the adoption of a fibrinogen project for its 1955-56 operating budget. Fibrinogen, it was explained, is a blood fraction derived from outdated plasma which can be utilized to control hemorrhaging—particularly in childbirth and brain operations.

The Red Cross is the main source of supply of fibrinogen, and local surgeons and physicians have already used it in the city's two hospitals. Their praise of it is high and the support of the blood program urged.

The mobile unit from the Johnstown Regional Center will be here Monday, chapter officials said, and volunteers may donate between noon and 6 p.m. at the Eagles Home, North Mechanic Street. The quota for the visit is 150 pints, it was pointed out, and all who have received appointments are urged to keep them if at all possible. "Walk-ins," it was stressed, will be processed at their convenience.

The unit will collect blood the following day from residents of the Frostburg area. It will be located at the home of Farrady Post 24 during the same hours as during the local visit. The quota for this stop is also 150 pints, it was stated.

Methods of preparing fibrinogen, chapter officials explained, were developed under Red Cross contract at the Michigan State Health Department laboratories. Not yet produced on a commercial basis, small amounts of the blood fraction have been distributed for clinical research. The estimated requirements for the year's project is about 5,000 doses, officials said.

Brothers Fixing Old Furniture

A new course, the upholstering of furniture, has been introduced into the carpenter shop at SS. Peter and Paul Monastery.

In a recent appeal for old furniture, the Brothers received a number of pieces which need the kinks and bumps removed.

They promptly knocked the stuffing out of the furniture, stripped the pieces down to skeleton form and rebuilt it into very serviceable furniture.

A steady stream of such repair jobs now gives the Brothers an opportunity to study the construction of commercial furniture and to adapt commercial methods to their own work.

The new project is under the guidance of Brother Emeric, OFM, Cap.

Equity Suit Filed

An equity suit was filed Thursday in Allegany County Circuit Court. The bill of complaint was titled Barbara E. Valentine, infant, by Leota G. Cage, mother and next friend, vs. Jesse J. Valentine.

John E. Harris, Bedford Road, has been notified that he won fifth prize amounting to $332.31 plus a weekend holiday at the Great Oak Lodge, Great Oak, Md., in sales competition in a nationwide sales contest.

Harris is employed as a salesman of doors and windows by Rusco Window and Supply Company, distributors of doors, windows and metal awnings.

About 10,000 salesmen competed in the sales contest. First prize of $1,000 went to Kenneth Combs of St. Paul, Minn. Second prize of $390.95 went to Alex Youngbeck of Cleveland, Ohio.

Third place money of $371.40, went to Ivar Grumdahl, of St. Paul. Fourth money of $351.86 was awarded to Ted Stoller of Moorehead, Minn.

The contest covered a six-weeks period with Rusco appropriating $1 for each door sold, and the distributor adding another dollar. It was from this fund that prizes were paid. A total of 20 salesmen in various parts of the country received cash awards, the lowest being $50.82.

Allan Staggers, manager of the local Rusco store, said Harris has been employed by his firm for about two years and formerly worked at the Celanese Corporation plant here.

roads the gasoline tax money which it now turns over to the State Roads Commission.

Increase pensions for school teachers paid by the county by a flat $25 per month and also seek to have their state pensions increased.

Place all Allegany County employes under the provisions of Social Security.

Put the Allegany County Hospital and Infirmary, and Sylvan Retreat under the supervision of qualified superintendents who have had at least ten years of experience in such work.

Change the existing law requiring advertisement for bids on county purchases costing over $1,000, so that bids would be required on purchases costing over $200, in order to give all firms an equal opportunity to bid on county business.

Backs Zoning Law

Have the county commissioners pass a zoning law to promote the health, safety, moral and general welfare of the county citizens. The law would be similar to Ordinance 1776 of the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland.

Some of the resolutions can be accomplished only by introduction of new bills by Senator Robert B. Kimble and the county delegation, and enactment by the General Assembly, Wilkinson said in his statement, and he moved that the board seek the passage of necessary legislation.

In his other resolution, he moved that the board hold up any action on the resolution it passed last week seeking the repeal of the two tax exemption laws until a report is made by the Industrial Promotion Committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

He also said action should be held up until the industrial promotion group can meet with the commissioners to consider a solution that would be equitable to the taxpayers and at the same time encourage industry to locate here and induce existing industry to expand.

Truck Will Pickup Relief Collections

A truck from the New Windsor Church World Service Center will be here Monday to pick up articles for shipment to distressed people overseas.

Food, clothing and fats for soap making will be collected at Living Stone Church of the Brethren and First Presbyterian Church. Contributions will be received at both churches until Monday.

Trailer Upsets, Driver Injured

A Hagerstown area tractor trailer operator was admitted Thursday to Memorial Hospital, Winchester, Va., after his vehicle wrecked on Route 50 near Pleasant Dale, W. Va.

Hospital attaches identifed the injured man as Mayo C. Barnett, RD 1, Williamsport and listed his injuries as a fractured clavicle and contusions of the chest and both legs. His condition last night was termed "satisfactory."

West Virginia State Trooper G. H. Phillips, who investigated, said Barnett was driving a van load of steel which shifted as the rig rounded a curve. The tractor-trailer turned onto its left side after the steel shifted, skidded across the highway and rammed into an embankment.

Trooper Phillips said Barnett was pinned in the wreckage for over an hour before he could be freed, mainly because there was no wrecker-car in the Romney area big enough to handle the tractor trailer.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at a minimum of $5,000 by the investigating officer. Trooper Phillips said Route 50 was partially blocked overnight by the wreckage, adding that a large wrecker was due yesterday from Winchester to clear the highway.

John Humbird PTA Will Meet Tuesday

The John Humbird School Parent-Teacher Association will meet Tuesday night at the school.

Room visitation is planned at 7:30 p. m. and the general meeting will get under way at 8 p. m.

The program will include accordion music by the Smith Triplets and selections by the Fort Hill High School a capella choir.

New Project Adopted For Blood Program

The adoption of a new project by the board of governors of the National Red Cross should be an additional incentive to residents of this area for the support of the county Red Cross Chapter's free blood program.

The board recently recommended the adoption of a fibrinogen project for its 1955-56 operating budget. Fibrinogen, it was explained, is a blood fraction derived from outdated plasma which can be utilized to control hemorrhaging—particularly in childbirth and brain operations.

The Red Cross is the main source of supply of fibrinogen, and local surgeons and physicians have already used it in the city's two hospitals. Their praise of it is high and the support of the blood program urged.

The mobile unit from the Johnstown Regional Center will be here Monday, chapter officials said, and volunteers may donate between noon and 6 p.m. at the Eagles Home, North Mechanic Street. The quota for the visit is 150 pints, it was pointed out, and all who have received appointments are urged to keep them if at all possible. "Walk-ins," it was stressed, will be processed at their convenience.

The unit will collect blood the following day from residents of the Frostburg area. It will be located at the home of Farrady Post 24 during the same hours as during the local visit. The quota for this stop is also 150 pints, it was stated.

Methods of preparing fibrinogen, chapter officials explained, were developed under Red Cross contract at the Michigan State Health Department laboratories. Not yet produced on a commercial basis, small amounts of the blood fraction have been distributed for clinical research. The estimated requirements for the year's project is about 5,000 doses, officials said.

Brothers Fixing Old Furniture

A new course, the upholstering of furniture, has been introduced into the carpenter shop at SS. Peter and Paul Monastery.

In a recent appeal for old furniture, the Brothers received a number of pieces which need the kinks and bumps removed.

They promptly knocked the stuffing out of the furniture, stripped the pieces down to skeleton form and rebuilt it into very serviceable furniture.

A steady stream of such repair jobs now gives the Brothers an opportunity to study the construction of commercial furniture and to adapt commercial methods to their own work.

The new project is under the guidance of Brother Emeric, OFM, Cap.

Results Satisfactory, Says Dr. Adenauer

Dr. Konrad Adenauer, chancellor of the West German Republic, has chosen the word "satisfactory" to describe the results of the elections in Bavaria and Hesse. That sounds like understatement in view of his assertion that "the people of the federal republic continue to affirm the policies of the Christian Democratic and Christian Socialist parties." But his meaning is clear.

It happens that while Adenauer's Christian Democrats lost ground in both states, as measured by the popular vote, they will dominate a new coalition government in Bavaria and will probably be able to join hands with the Free Democrats and the Refugee party to wrest control of Hesse from the Social Democrats.

Proportional representation will produce a gain in power for the Christian Democrats and lessen the power of their strongest rivals, the Socialists.

Even if the Refugee party should not ally itself with the Christian Democrats in Hesse, the ousting of the Social Democrats from the Bavarian government makes it possible for Adenauer to count on 26 of the 38 votes in the Bundesrat when the Paris agreements are brought up for parliamentary action at Bonn. That is, he is assured of the two-thirds vote he needs.

The possibility remains that Adenauer will not have a two-thirds vote on the collateral but highly important issue of the Saar, but it is not entirely clear that this is a constitutional question requiring a two-thirds majority.

The outcome of the two elections thus is satisfactory to Adenauer because he can go ahead with the task of getting the pacts ratified and feel reasonably certain that the effort will be successful.

These Days

The Internal Revolution

One of the arguments in favor of a "go-soft" attitude toward Soviet Russia is that an internal revolution is about to take place at any moment. Although no evidence is generally available on the subject, those who believe that such a revolution will take place base their conclusions on statements made by refugees and escapees who have been interviewed by American officials and by various associations which devote themselves to such activities.

The assumption is that the numerous peoples of the Soviet Universal State seek freedom and liberty on the Western model, a condition of life with which most of them have no familiarity. The vast freedoms which are so precious to us have never existed in Russia, czarist or bolshevik. They are unknown to a very large part of the human race and are not believed to be possible or reasonable by many.

In a huge empire the size of the Soviet Universal State, it is always possible that internal disturbances will develop, particularly among the nations on the periphery. Such disturbances are usually the result of one of several causes, to four of which I call attention:

1. Failure in war;
2. Dissent and internecine strife among the rulers;
3. Increasing and excessive luxury on the top levels leading to moral decay and disrespect for authority among the people;
4. Natural disasters, including famines, which lead to desperate uprisings that generally fail in their immediate objectives but which create turmoil among the people and a weakening of authority.

These four causes for weakness have not yet appeared anywhere in the Soviet Universal State, so far as we know. In fact, available evidence points in the opposite direction. Soviet Russia has won every military and diplomatic enterprise up to the new German Treaty. The test of a Russian failure would be the ratification of the treaty by France and West Germany.

In the internal affairs of Soviet Russia, the death of Stalin produced no cataclysm; in fact, the movement from an absolute, autocratic dictatorship to "collective leadership" passed with only one hitch, the intrigue of Beria which was put down with swift and effective brutality which did not affect the people one way or the other. The era of luxury which brought decay to the Roman Empire and to the courts that succeeded Louis XIV in France has not yet appeared in Soviet Russia.

No one can guarantee that there will not be a revolution in some area of the Soviet Universal State. But can anyone guarantee that one will take place, and that if it does take place, it will not be put down as ruthlessly as Stalin managed the 1937 and 1938 purge or as Malenkov handled the Beria incident?

The error in judgment as to the possibility of an internal revolution is only important if the revolution does not take place. For then, any conclusions based on its imminence can be very costly, as costly as the conquest of China by Marxism during the diversionary Berlin Airlift.

It is not at all impossible that Soviet Russia has planted the seeds of a fictitious prospective revolution as a method of softening the Western attitude toward the Russian "peace" campaign. The diversionary Berlin Airlift should have been a lesson to us because while it was the center of intense attention, Soviet Russia completed the conquest of China and amalgamated China into the Soviet Universal State of which by its constitution, whatever language is employed, China is now a part.

If those in authority in the United States, the President, the secretary of state, the evaluators of data in the CIA, accept the prospect of revolution as immediately probable, an adoption of a receptive attitude will be based upon the assumption that the Lord is on the side of the righteous. That can turn out to be a pious hope that may not exist in reality. That would make their policy as false as General Marshall's was with regard to China when he was misadvised as to the nature of Chinese communism, or as false as the British policy toward Red China has been which was based on advice from Hongkong traders that swift recognition would result in a split between Russia and China.

John Foster Dulles's counsel of caution does make sense in these troubled times, but the inaction of American policy increases confusion.

McCarthy Debate Will Cause Democratic Party Split

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — There's all the difference in the world between the use of the word "censure" in a formal resolution by the United States Senate and an expression of opinion that "condemns" a senator's conduct.

The word "censure" is a legal term which approximates legal contempt, and, although the Watkins Committee in its report on Senator McCarthy used the words "contemptuous" and "contumacious," as well as "censure," it abandoned such words when the chips were down and settled for the word "condemn."

This is in line with precedent. For the ablest constitutional lawyers in the Senate's history have held that the Senate cannot "punish" a member except for "disorderly behavior" and that the word "punish," as used in the Constitution, means the actual meting out of some form of punishment. Thus, the word "censure" has been used only twice in the history of the Senate and on both occasions when members had engaged in a fist fight on the floor of the Senate. Never has there been a punishment or a "censure" administered for mere language used. Indeed, the Supreme Court once ruled that the House of Representatives couldn't punish a U. S. attorney for derogatory language about a member because mere language was not obstructive of the legislative process.

Many Senators Puzzled

Perhaps the most powerful argument on this point was made by Gilbert Roe, attorney for the elder Senator La Follette, who convinced Senator Thomas Walsh of Montana, Democrat, a famous constitutional lawyer, that, while the Senate may expel a member for any reason, it could not "censure" him for anything except disorderly conduct on the floor of the Senate. Disorderly conduct elsewhere, he contended, was a misdemeanor punishable only by the courts of law.

The wind-up of the Senate debate on the resolution of condemnation leaves many senators themselves puzzled. They have rebuked Senator McCarthy for what he said about the Senate subcommittee before which he refused to testify in 1951 and 1952. Yet the elder Senator La Follette also refused to testify on a matter of his own conduct and ignored the committee's requests and invitations.

In the present instance, another Wisconsin senator who did virtually the same thing is reprimanded by resolution. One reason is that Senator McCarthy personally offended many senators by his recent criticism of the Watkins Committee itself. As for the treatment of General Zwicker by Senator McCarthy, the Senate dropped all mention of the episode.

While formal "censure" on all counts was abandoned, an unprecedented decision now has been made by a majority of the Senate that any member of a minority may be rebuked by resolution for expressing opinions unpalatable to the majority, particularly about its committees.

This is something unheard of in the history of the United States Senate from its very beginning. That's why Senators Knowland and Hickenlooper, Republicans, warned that freedom of speech for senators was being curtailed by such an action.

The battle over the so-called "censure" resolution has left deep wounds. The Republican party divided 22 to 22 on the final vote. The line-up for McCarthy looks very much like the pro-Taft group before the 1952 convention, and the anti-McCarthy roll call on the Republican side is reminiscent of the pro-Eisenhower faction.

Tactical Error

As for the Democrats, they made the political mistake of lining up solidly against Senator McCarthy. This was a tactical error, because obviously there were differences of opinion among them, as some of the votes on the amendment showed. But for party strategy reasons they held together and presented a solid political line-up.

This gives some of the Republican stump speakers a chance throughout the country to repeat their charge that the Democratic party is more interested in punishing a se[illegible] who fights communism th[illegible]s in fighting communism it[illegible]

As for inte[illegible]perate language, the Democrats who accepted the Bennett amendment, which "condemns" Senator McCarthy for saying the Watkins Committee was the "unwitting handmaiden of the Communist party," will find it embarrassing to defend themselves on their vote. For President Truman in a public speech in 1948 declared the Republican party to be the "unwitting ally of the Communist party," and Congress neither censured nor condemned him for saying so, though either house could have done so.

These epithets will not die with the debate but will be heard for a long time as the battle goes to the country. Inside the Democratic party it will in time produce the same kind of split on the McCarthy issue that the Republican party has experienced.

Contrariness Of Youngsters Usually Is Just A Phase

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Many youngsters begin to feel independent by their second birthday. "No" becomes the favorite word in their vocabulary and some are defiant or downright ornery. This is a healthy sign; the child is attempting to stand on his own feet. Parents and physicians often are pleased when this stage is reached.

The venturesome tyke is in sharp contrast to the one whose spirit has been broken through fear or insecurity. Placidity is common in the mentally deficient youngster, which is one reason why he is so affectionate and lovable.

Contrariness is the first sign that Dennis is getting tired of grownup supervision and restrictions. The boy is old enough to think he can make his own decisions and feels justified therefore, in his behavior. If he gets by with it, the attitude continues and he may even refuse to obey, just to test his parents' temper.

This trait is better appreciated when recognized as a passing phase which usually disappears on entering school. When it persists, however, more expert care is necessary to track down the cause.

Contrariness should not be confused with the actions of spoiled children who feel insecure and demand this or that to satisfy their inner needs. The problem is not corrected by granting everything they wish but by attempting to find and remove basic conflicts.

The destructive child also may be letting off steam because he is confused or unhappy. The parents may be at fault by imposing too many restrictions or the tyke feels unwanted or unloved and creates havoc to get attention. He displays his anger by pushing over the lamp or kicking his sister in the shins.

Few children are destructive on purpose. It is normal for the toddler to break things because he lacks coordination and good judgment. In his curiosity about his environment he handles, smells, tastes, and squeezes everything in sight.

It is not the little fellow's fault if an object slips out of his hands. This exploratory impulse is natural and stifling it does more harm than good. It is more sensible to put fragile and valuable family heirlooms out of sight for a few years.

Other mothers find it advantageous to make the living room "off limits" by keeping the door locked or fenced off with a gate. The rumpus room had its origin in meeting the toddler's needs.

Here he can play at ease; knocking over a pile of blocks is cheaper than smashing the Royal Doulton figurine on the coffee table. As a rule, the destructive tendency disappears by the fourth year.

MENTALITY OF DWARFS

T. H. writes: Are dwarfs retarded mentally?

REPLY

Not necessarily, as physical and mental retardation need not be related.

POSTURE IS A FACTOR

F. J. writes: For several weeks I've been waking up with headache that my doctor says is due to sinus. Why does pain abate as the day progresses?

REPLY

The upright posture encourages drainage of the sinuses. Pain subsides as a result.

SARCOMA

D. W. writes: How does sarcoma differ from other cancers?

RPLYE

Sarcoma is a form of cancer that favors mesodermal tissue such as is found in bone, cartilage, blood vessels, kidneys, sex organs, connective tissue, and the lymphatics. Many of the sarcomas that develop in these areas are highly malignant.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me!

By Bennett Cerf

A young assistant in whom J. P. Morgan had great faith became involved with a chorus girl and his name suddenly was being bandied about in the press. "I'm disappointed in you," the tycoon told him bluntly. "But, Mr. Morgan," protested the young man. "It's just that I'm not a hypocrite. I haven't done a thing that most other young men haven't done behind closed doors!" "You may be right," admitted Morgan, "but dammit, that's what doors are for!"

"When a girl says she'll be ready in a minute," advises Colonel Duffy, "you can be sure of just one thing: she speaks English."

"When Jack Benny signed his new contract with Columbia Broadcasting," recalls headman William Paley, "we told him he could have everything he wanted. To his everlasting credit, be it said he never took advantage of us. We still have the basement of our building on Madison Avenue."

William Remington Murder Highlights Worst Vice Of U. S. Prison System

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—The murder of William Remington in Lewisburg Penitentiary was not the result of anti-Communist hatred or of rival prison gangs, but of the worst vice occurring in our prisons today—homosexuality.

That is the judgment of one ex-convict who served with Remington in Lewisburg, plus that of various prison experts.

It highlights a system which breeds more crime instead of curing it, which makes hardened criminals out of first-termers and which spews increasing amounts of social poison into the blood stream of American life.

Lewisburg happens to be among the best of the federal penitentiaries. Among convicts it is called the "country club." It is better run, and its inmates have a better chance of rehabilitation.

And if two convicts were able to steal into Remington's cell at Lewisburg to bludgeon him to death, much worse is able to take place, and has taken place, in the cesspools of overcrowded humanity which are called state penitentiaries.

"You can't believe it unless you see it," said John Staples, of Washington, D. C., who recently served time in Lewisburg on a charge of income-tax evasion. "You think Remington was killed by Communist haters? No, he was killed because of a sex deal.

Prison Beatings

"He probably made some remark about some affair, and that's why he got his. I never heard of this deal of the brick in the sock. When I was there they used those brushes you have for cleaning out toilet bowls.

"The same thing happened to a guy in the bed next to me," continued Staples. "He made a remark about two guys who were having an affair. Just happened to say wasn't it terrible that such things were tolerated. So one night they came in after lights out, pulled the blanket up over his head so he couldn't see who it was and couldn't get away.

"They just about beat him to death, and even if he had seen them he wouldn't have dared tell anyone about it, else he would have been killed for sure. I put my head under the covers and tried to pretend I was asleep, or I would have gotten it too.

"They don't bother anyone in Lewisburg because he's a Communist. Everybody up there hates the government. The more you hate the government, the more you're respected.

"And this idea that someone wanted to steal money from Remington is pure poppycock," said Staples. "Everyone knows that the most dangerous thing you can have is money. When they come around to inspect your locker and find money in it, you're in trouble. You can't use money in jail—except for bribery and that's why it isn't allowed.

"Your money is taken away when you come in and any money your relatives send is kept on account. You have a charge account at the commissary, but you can't use money.

"So when the prison authorities talk about stealing something out of Remington's locker, it's just an alibi to cover up the worst thing that happens in a pen.

Disease In Jail

"A kid who comes to the pen doesn't have a chance," continued Staples. "Some boy 18 or 19 looks like a movie star to those guys who have been in there five or ten years, and probably will be in there five or ten more. He'll wind up perverted, or in a padded cell, or both.

"I worked in the hospital, and when these guys who were healthy when they entered the pen started coming for treatment, I was sort of confused, but I caught on. We gave shots every week, and every week we had plenty of new customers.

"I told this to an agent from the FBI, and asked him if he wasn't ashamed to have such things going on without doing a thing about it. 'We haven't got any proof,'' he says.

"That's it; the guys on the inside can't talk or they'll be killed, and when a guy gets out he wants to forget about it. Even when a guy's out of the pen, he may still get it if he blabs. In prison, if a man in one cell block makes a remark about some affair in another cell block it travels like wildfire, and those guys will make contacts and have him beaten. They'll get someone in their cell block who has a friend in the cell, and he'll have to do the beating whether he wants to or not. That's the way it works. They've got to beat him. It's almost like the law.

"You can't tell me the authorities don't know anything about it either. I've seen men right out in the prison yard kissing each other, and combing each other's hair. The guards would have to be blind not to see it, too. When we left, the assistant warden gave us a little speech, kind of a send-off. And he actually told us: 'If any of you men have engaged in homosexual activities while you've been here, don't let it bother you. You can all go back to a normal life.''

"That's just what he told us," Staples said. "Now isn't that a helluva thing!"

"Isn't it better than telling them they couldn't go back to a normal life?" he was asked.

"Sure it is. But doesn't that show the authorities knew what was going on? They know it's happening, and they don't do a — thing about it.

"I could tell you plenty more like this, but why bother. I'll just say this, that if one of my boys was sent to the penitentiary, I'd commit suicide, or find some way to blow the place up, because I know what happens to kids when they go in there. They'll never be the same again."

Trial Pattern Set

By Bob Considine

CLEVELAND, Dec. 3—(INS)—From all appearances, Dr. Sam never came even close to having his grim game of life and death called off at the half.

Judge Edward Blythin, who had asked for a night's sleep on the matter of the defense's appeal for a directed verdict of not guilty at the end of the state's case, apparently did just that. He was spryer than usual as he mounted the bench and briskly rejected the defense's carefully constructed pleas for a demolition of the indictment.

"The court has no obligation whatever or no right to consider at this state the weight of facts or have any opinion," he stated, damming a rising flood of protest in the golden throat of Bill Corrigan, dean of Sam's mouthpieces.

Bill shrugged as if he expected it, and ordered his lawyer-son to truck in the defense's legal objects 'art. The defendant kept his head straight ahead, chin up, as expressionless and immobile as a face on Mt. Rushmore. If he had based great hope on being acquitted then and there, he mimed disinterest to such a high degree that he should be considered eligible for the next academy award.

Corrigan jumped into his case feet first. For his lead-off man he called Dr. Stephen Sheppard, Dr. Sam's brother and top adviser, but at the start it appeared that one of the feet was in Steve's mouth. Steve had been in the bullpen long enough to be thoroughly warmed up when called into the fray. He couldn't confine his answers to yes and no and "then I went downstairs." Steve wanted to tell how he felt, how he had figured things out, and what third parties had said. Prosecution and bench chided him repeatedly.

He set the pattern for the remaining days and weeks of Sam Sheppard's trial for the murder of Marilyn Sheppard.

Sam, he said, was true blue, "the most level-headed of our entire family," never fought as a kid, was crazy about little Chip and other kids, showered gifts on Marilyn, ducked important meetings at a medical convention in Washington, D. C., to play tennis with her and take her sight seeing. When it came time for Steve to say that Sam and Marilyn had decided to call their new baby Stephen Allen, Sam cried.

The impression may have bloomed around the land that Sam cries like Niagara. He doesn't, and he makes no show of it for the benefit of the jury. His nose reddens, his eyes fill, he closes his lids, briefly touches them with a handkerchief, squares his chin again and continues to stare forward. Sam cries manly. No blubbering.

The work of pulling down the edifice of the state's case against Sam got under way methodically as wreckers work. The matter of his brown corduroy jacket, for instance.

The state implies that on the murder night (last July 3) Sam, with premeditation, neatly folded the jacket (in which he had fallen to sleep on a downstairs couch), placed it across the couch, went upstairs and beat his wife to death.

Today Dr. Steve swore that when he arrived at the murder house, shortly after the alarm was spread, the jacket was tumbled on the floor—the inference being that Dr. Sam had ripped it off when he heard his wife scream, flung it down and raced upstairs to get "clobbered," as he has put it.

The state has made much of Sam's vaguely worded descriptions of his two losing fights with the intruder or intruders, human or otherwise. Dr. Steve had an answer for that. "I directed that he be given 100 millegrams of demerol as soon as he was brought to the hospital," the witness asserted.

The state says, too, that Dr. Sam was "whisked" out of the murder home without knowledge of police. "Chief Eaton and Patrolman Drenkhen (of the Bay Village police force) were present when I took my brother out of the house that morning. They made no objection; none whatsoever."

And so it went and will go, and in time the job of straightening out the debris, or what is left standing of the state's case, will fall upon the jury.

Results Satisfactory, Says Dr. Adenauer

Dr. Konrad Adenauer, chancellor of the West German Republic, has chosen the word "satisfactory" to describe the results of the elections in Bavaria and Hesse. That sounds like understatement in view of his assertion that "the people of the federal republic continue to affirm the policies of the Christian Democratic and Christian Socialist parties." But his meaning is clear.

It happens that while Adenauer's Christian Democrats lost ground in both states, as measured by the popular vote, they will dominate a new coalition government in Bavaria and will probably be able to join hands with the Free Democrats and the Refugee party to wrest control of Hesse from the Social Democrats.

Proportional representation will produce a gain in power for the Christian Democrats and lessen the power of their strongest rivals, the Socialists.

Even if the Refugee party should not ally itself with the Christian Democrats in Hesse, the ousting of the Social Democrats from the Bavarian government makes it possible for Adenauer to count on 26 of the 38 votes in the Bundesrat when the Paris agreements are brought up for parliamentary action at Bonn. That is, he is assured of the two-thirds vote he needs.

The possibility remains that Adenauer will not have a two-thirds vote on the collateral but highly important issue of the Saar, but it is not entirely clear that this is a constitutional question requiring a two-thirds majority.

The outcome of the two elections thus is satisfactory to Adenauer because he can go ahead with the task of getting the pacts ratified and feel reasonably certain that the effort will be successful.

These Days

The Internal Revolution

One of the arguments in favor of a "go-soft" attitude toward Soviet Russia is that an internal revolution is about to take place at any moment. Although no evidence is generally available on the subject, those who believe that such a revolution will take place base their conclusions on statements made by refugees and escapees who have been interviewed by American officials and by various associations which devote themselves to such activities.

The assumption is that the numerous peoples of the Soviet Universal State seek freedom and liberty on the Western model, a condition of life with which most of them have no familiarity. The vast freedoms which are so precious to us have never existed in Russia, czarist or bolshevik. They are unknown to a very large part of the human race and are not believed to be possible or reasonable by many.

In a huge empire the size of the Soviet Universal State, it is always possible that internal disturbances will develop, particularly among the nations on the periphery. Such disturbances are usually the result of one of several causes, to four of which I call attention:

1. Failure in war;
2. Dissent and internecine strife among the rulers;
3. Increasing and excessive luxury on the top levels leading to moral decay and disrespect for authority among the people;
4. Natural disasters, including famines, which lead to desperate uprisings that generally fail in their immediate objectives but which create turmoil among the people and a weakening of authority.

These four causes for weakness have not yet appeared anywhere in the Soviet Universal State, so far as we know. In fact, available evidence points in the opposite direction. Soviet Russia has won every military and diplomatic enterprise up to the new German Treaty. The test of a Russian failure would be the ratification of the treaty by France and West Germany.

In the internal affairs of Soviet Russia, the death of Stalin produced no cataclysm; in fact, the movement from an absolute, autocratic dictatorship to "collective leadership" passed with only one hitch, the intrigue of Beria which was put down with swift and effective brutality which did not affect the people one way or the other. The era of luxury which brought decay to the Roman Empire and to the courts that succeeded Louis XIV in France has not yet appeared in Soviet Russia.

No one can guarantee that there will not be a revolution in some area of the Soviet Universal State. But can anyone guarantee that one will take place, and that if it does take place, it will not be put down as ruthlessly as Stalin managed the 1937 and 1938 purge or as Malenkov handled the Beria incident?

The error in judgment as to the possibility of an internal revolution is only important if the revolution does not take place. For then, any conclusions based on its imminence can be very costly, as costly as the conquest of China by Marxism during the diversionary Berlin Airlift.

It is not at all impossible that Soviet Russia has planted the seeds of a fictitious prospective revolution as a method of softening the Western attitude toward the Russian "peace" campaign. The diversionary Berlin Airlift should have been a lesson to us because while it was the center of intense attention, Soviet Russia completed the conquest of China and amalgamated China into the Soviet Universal State of which by its constitution, whatever language is employed, China is now a part.

If those in authority in the United States, the President, the secretary of state, the evaluators of data in the CIA, accept the prospect of revolution as immediately probable, an adoption of a receptive attitude will be based upon the assumption that the Lord is on the side of the righteous. That can turn out to be a pious hope that may not exist in reality. That would make their policy as false as General Marshall's was with regard to China when he was misadvised as to the nature of Chinese communism, or as false as the British policy toward Red China has been which was based on advice from Hongkong traders that swift recognition would result in a split between Russia and China.

John Foster Dulles's counsel of caution does make sense in these troubled times, but the inaction of American policy increases confusion.

McCarthy Debate Will Cause Democratic Party Split

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — There's all the difference in the world between the use of the word "censure" in a formal resolution by the United States Senate and an expression of opinion that "condemns" a senator's conduct.

The word "censure" is a legal term which approximates legal contempt, and, although the Watkins Committee in its report on Senator McCarthy used the words "contemptuous" and "contumacious," as well as "censure," it abandoned such words when the chips were down and settled for the word "condemn."

This is in line with precedent. For the ablest constitutional lawyers in the Senate's history have held that the Senate cannot "punish" a member except for "disorderly behavior" and that the word "punish," as used in the Constitution, means the actual meting out of some form of punishment. Thus, the word "censure" has been used only twice in the history of the Senate and on both occasions when members had engaged in a fist fight on the floor of the Senate. Never has there been a punishment or a "censure" administered for mere language used. Indeed, the Supreme Court once ruled that the House of Representatives couldn't punish a U. S. attorney for derogatory language about a member because mere language was not obstructive of the legislative process.

Many Senators Puzzled

Perhaps the most powerful argument on this point was made by Gilbert Roe, attorney for the elder Senator La Follette, who convinced Senator Thomas Walsh of Montana, Democrat, a famous constitutional lawyer, that, while the Senate may expel a member for any reason, it could not "censure" him for anything except disorderly conduct on the floor of the Senate. Disorderly conduct elsewhere, he contended, was a misdemeanor punishable only by the courts of law.

The wind-up of the Senate debate on the resolution of condemnation leaves many senators themselves puzzled. They have rebuked Senator McCarthy for what he said about the Senate subcommittee before which he refused to testify in 1951 and 1952. Yet the elder Senator La Follette also refused to testify on a matter of his own conduct and ignored the committee's requests and invitations.

In the present instance, another Wisconsin senator who did virtually the same thing is reprimanded by resolution. One reason is that Senator McCarthy personally offended many senators by his recent criticism of the Watkins Committee itself. As for the treatment of General Zwicker by Senator McCarthy, the Senate dropped all mention of the episode.

While formal "censure" on all counts was abandoned, an unprecedented decision now has been made by a majority of the Senate that any member of a minority may be rebuked by resolution for expressing opinions unpalatable to the majority, particularly about its committees.

This is something unheard of in the history of the United States Senate from its very beginning. That's why Senators Knowland and Hickenlooper, Republicans, warned that freedom of speech for senators was being curtailed by such an action.

The battle over the so-called "censure" resolution has left deep wounds. The Republican party divided 22 to 22 on the final vote. The line-up for McCarthy looks very much like the pro-Taft group before the 1952 convention, and the anti-McCarthy roll call on the Republican side is reminiscent of the pro-Eisenhower faction.

Tactical Error

As for the Democrats, they made the political mistake of lining up solidly against Senator McCarthy. This was a tactical error, because obviously there were differences of opinion among them, as some of the votes on the amendment showed. But for party strategy reasons they held together and presented a solid political line-up.

This gives some of the Republican stump speakers a chance throughout the country to repeat their charge that the Democratic party is more interested in punishing a se[illegible] who fights communism th[illegible]s in fighting communism it[illegible]

As for inte[illegible]perate language, the Democrats who accepted the Bennett amendment, which "condemns" Senator McCarthy for saying the Watkins Committee was the "unwitting handmaiden of the Communist party," will find it embarrassing to defend themselves on their vote. For President Truman in a public speech in 1948 declared the Republican party to be the "unwitting ally of the Communist party," and Congress neither censured nor condemned him for saying so, though either house could have done so.

These epithets will not die with the debate but will be heard for a long time as the battle goes to the country. Inside the Democratic party it will in time produce the same kind of split on the McCarthy issue that the Republican party has experienced.

Contrariness Of Youngsters Usually Is Just A Phase

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Many youngsters begin to feel independent by their second birthday. "No" becomes the favorite word in their vocabulary and some are defiant or downright ornery. This is a healthy sign; the child is attempting to stand on his own feet. Parents and physicians often are pleased when this stage is reached.

The venturesome tyke is in sharp contrast to the one whose spirit has been broken through fear or insecurity. Placidity is common in the mentally deficient youngster, which is one reason why he is so affectionate and lovable.

Contrariness is the first sign that Dennis is getting tired of grownup supervision and restrictions. The boy is old enough to think he can make his own decisions and feels justified therefore, in his behavior. If he gets by with it, the attitude continues and he may even refuse to obey, just to test his parents' temper.

This trait is better appreciated when recognized as a passing phase which usually disappears on entering school. When it persists, however, more expert care is necessary to track down the cause.

Contrariness should not be confused with the actions of spoiled children who feel insecure and demand this or that to satisfy their inner needs. The problem is not corrected by granting everything they wish but by attempting to find and remove basic conflicts.

The destructive child also may be letting off steam because he is confused or unhappy. The parents may be at fault by imposing too many restrictions or the tyke feels unwanted or unloved and creates havoc to get attention. He displays his anger by pushing over the lamp or kicking his sister in the shins.

Few children are destructive on purpose. It is normal for the toddler to break things because he lacks coordination and good judgment. In his curiosity about his environment he handles, smells, tastes, and squeezes everything in sight.

It is not the little fellow's fault if an object slips out of his hands. This exploratory impulse is natural and stifling it does more harm than good. It is more sensible to put fragile and valuable family heirlooms out of sight for a few years.

Other mothers find it advantageous to make the living room "off limits" by keeping the door locked or fenced off with a gate. The rumpus room had its origin in meeting the toddler's needs.

Here he can play at ease; knocking over a pile of blocks is cheaper than smashing the Royal Doulton figurine on the coffee table. As a rule, the destructive tendency disappears by the fourth year.

Try And Stop Me!

A young assistant in whom J. P. Morgan had great faith became involved with a chorus girl and his name suddenly was being bandied about in the press. "I'm disappointed in you," the tycoon told him bluntly. "But, Mr. Morgan," protested the young man. "It's just that I'm not a hypocrite. I haven't done a thing that most other young men haven't done behind closed doors!" "You may be right," admitted Morgan, "but dammit, that's what doors are for!"

William Remington Murder Highlights Worst Vice Of U. S. Prison System

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—The murder of William Remington in Lewisburg Penitentiary was not the result of anti-Communist hatred or of rival prison gangs, but of the worst vice occurring in our prisons today—homosexuality.

That is the judgment of one ex-convict who served with Remington in Lewisburg, plus that of various prison experts.

It highlights a system which breeds more crime instead of curing it, which makes hardened criminals out of first-termers and which spews increasing amounts of social poison into the blood stream of American life.

Lewisburg happens to be among the best of the federal penitentiaries. Among convicts it is called the "country club." It is better run, and its inmates have a better chance of rehabilitation.

And if two convicts were able to steal into Remington's cell at Lewisburg to bludgeon him to death, much worse is able to take place, and has taken place, in the cesspools of overcrowded humanity which are called state penitentiaries.

"You can't believe it unless you see it," said John Staples, of Washington, D. C., who recently served time in Lewisburg on a charge of income-tax evasion. "You think Remington was killed by Communist haters? No, he was killed because of a sex deal.

Prison Beatings

"He probably made some remark about some affair, and that's why he got his. I never heard of this deal of the brick in the sock. When I was there they used those brushes you have for cleaning out toilet bowls.

"The same thing happened to a guy in the bed next to me," continued Staples. "He made a remark about two guys who were having an affair. Just happened to say wasn't it terrible that such things were tolerated. So one night they came in after lights out, pulled the blanket up over his head so he couldn't see who it was and couldn't get away.

"They just about beat him to death, and even if he had seen them he wouldn't have dared tell anyone about it, else he would have been killed for sure. I put my head under the covers and tried to pretend I was asleep, or I would have gotten it too.

"They don't bother anyone in Lewisburg because he's a Communist. Everybody up there hates the government. The more you hate the government, the more you're respected.

"And this idea that someone wanted to steal money from Remington is pure poppycock," said Staples. "Everyone knows that the most dangerous thing you can have is money. When they come around to inspect your locker and find money in it, you're in trouble. You can't use money in jail—except for bribery and that's why it isn't allowed.

"Your money is taken away when you come in and any money your relatives send is kept on account. You have a charge account at the commissary, but you can't use money.

"So when the prison authorities talk about stealing something out of Remington's locker, it's just an alibi to cover up the worst thing that happens in a pen.

Disease In Jail

"A kid who comes to the pen doesn't have a chance," continued Staples. "Some boy 18 or 19 looks like a movie star to those guys who have been in there five or ten years, and probably will be in there five or ten more. He'll wind up perverted, or in a padded cell, or both.

"I worked in the hospital, and when these guys who were healthy when they entered the pen started coming for treatment, I was sort of confused, but I caught on. We gave shots every week, and every week we had plenty of new customers.

"I told this to an agent from the FBI, and asked him if he wasn't ashamed to have such things going on without doing a thing about it. 'We haven't got any proof," he says.

"That's it; the guys on the inside can't talk or they'll be killed, and when a guy gets out he wants to forget about it. Even when a guy's out of the pen, he may still get it if he blabs. In prison, if a man in one cell block makes a remark about some affair in another cell block it travels like wildfire, and those guys will make contacts and have him beaten. They'll get someone in their cell block who has a friend in the cell, and he'll have to do the beating whether he wants to or not. That's the way it works. They've got to beat him. It's almost like the law.

"You can't tell me the authorities don't know anything about it either. I've seen men right out in the prison yard kissing each other, and combing each other's hair. The guards would have to be blind not to see it, too. When we left, the assistant warden gave us a little speech, kind of a send-off. And he actually told us: 'If any of you men have engaged in homosexual activities while you've been here, don't let it bother you. You can all go back to a normal life."

"That's just what he told us," Staples said. "Now isn't that a helluva thing!"

"Isn't it better than telling them they couldn't go back to a normal life?" he was asked.

"Sure it is. But doesn't that show the authorities knew what was going on? They know it's happening, and they don't do a — thing about it.

"I could tell you plenty more like this, but why bother. I'll just say this, that if one of my boys was sent to the penitentiary, I'd commit suicide, or find some way to blow the place up, because I know what happens to kids when they go in there. They'll never be the same again."

Trial Pattern Set

By Bob Considine

CLEVELAND, Dec. 3—(INS)—From all appearances, Dr. Sam never came even close to having his grim game of life and death called off at the half.

Judge Edward Blythin, who had asked for a night's sleep on the matter of the defense's appeal for a directed verdict of not guilty at the end of the state's case, apparently did just that. He was spryer than usual as he mounted the bench and briskly rejected the defense's carefully constructed pleas for a demolition of the indictment.

"The court has no obligation whatever or no right to consider at this state the weight of facts or have any opinion," he stated, damming a rising flood of protest in the golden throat of Bill Corrigan, dean of Sam's mouthpieces.

Bill shrugged as if he expected it, and ordered his lawyer-son to truck in the defense's legal objects 'art. The defendant kept his head straight ahead, chin up, as expressionless and immobile as a face on Mt. Rushmore. If he had based great hope on being acquitted then and there, he mimed disinterest to such a high degree that he should be considered eligible for the next academy award.

Corrigan jumped into his case feet first. For his lead-off man he called Dr. Stephen Sheppard, Dr. Sam's brother and top adviser, but at the start it appeared that one of the feet was in Steve's mouth. Steve had been in the bullpen long enough to be thoroughly warmed up when called into the fray. He couldn't confine his answers to yes and no and "then I went downstairs." Steve wanted to tell how he felt, how he had figured things out, and what third parties had said. Prosecution and bench chided him repeatedly.

The state has made much of Sam's vaguely worded descriptions of his two losing fights with the intruder or intruders, human or otherwise. Dr. Steve had an answer for that. "I directed that he be given 100 millegrams of demerol as soon as he was brought to the hospital," the witness asserted.

The state says, too, that Dr. Sam was "whisked" out of the murder home without knowledge of police. "Chief Eaton and Patrolman Drenkhen (of the Bay Village police force) were present when I took my brother out of the house that morning. They made no objection; none whatsoever."

And so it went and will go, and in time the job of straightening out the debris, or what is left standing of the state's case, will fall upon the jury.

W. Va. Coal Producers Near End Of Worst Year

October Output Indicated Slight Tonnage Increase

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 3 (AP)—West Virginia's coal industry is limping toward the end of one of its worst years with prospects that production will be around 110 million tons.

State Mines Chief Frank B. King provided that estimate today as a somewhat better - than - average October figure was computed in the 1954 totals.

With October output of 9,622,556 tons and production for the first 10 months at 91,440,221 tons, statisticians went all the way back to 1940 to find a basis for comparison.

Mines Department officials said this would be the shortest production year since the 126,620,000 tons produced in 1940. These figures compare with the record output of 176,306,656 tons achieved in 1945, and the 173,654,000 tons produced in another banner year, 1947.

Meanwhile, there were encouraging reports about a fire which has been raging since an explosion killed one man and trapped 15 others in the Jamison No. 9 mine at Farmington last Nov. 13.

King said that latest samples of atmosphere from the sealed mine showed the carbon monoxide content had diminished to 0.6 per cent.

The oxygen content as shown by the samples continued at 4½ per cent. Officials said a reduction of both elements to zero would indicate the fire has been smothered.

The mine was sealed to put out the fire which followed in the wake of a series of explosions which shook the big mining operation in one of the most tragic of all events to befall the state's coal industry this year.

Through Nov. 30, the Mines Department lists 116 fatalities in the mining industry, against 101 for the corresponding period of 1953.

The Farmington mine, King noted, had compiled one of the best safety records in the state's mining history before the explosion last month. It had produced 6,800,000 tons without a fatal mishap of any kind.

State Paroles Several Men From This Area

ANNAPOLIS, Dec. 3 (AP)—The state released 104 persons from Maryland penal institutions in October for what is believed a new record in paroles, the Department of Parole and Probation announced today.

The list includes mostly those serving short sentences, none more than 20 years.

An official said the long list was an indication the department is beginning to operate as it should. "We were organized to speed up paroles, and we're beginning to function properly now," he said.

Those paroled:

Conrad P. Williams, 1 year, deadly weapon, Frederick County, last May.

Robert Franklin Loar, 2 years and 3 months, burglary and stealing, Allegany County, October, 1953.

Charles Wade Ashby, not more than 1 year, arson and burning, Garrett County, last May.

Wallace S. Holler, 18 months, bigamy, Frederick County, last March.

Keyser Kiwanis Hear Report On Girl Scouting

Mrs. James Swadley Outlines Progress

KEYSER — Mrs. James Swadley, president of the Lone Girl Scout Troop Association of Keyser, was guest speaker at the Kiwanis Club of Keyser dinner meeting Wednesday evening. Mrs. Swadley gave an interesting talk on the history of Girl Scouting in Keyser since it was started here a few years ago with one troop leader, who found, because there were no trained leaders to take over the work, that there were more girls than she could handle. In that time, Mrs. Swadley said, this one leader conducted a group of girls, eventually separating them into two units, intermediate and senior groups.

From that start, Mrs. Swadley said there are now several troops, including Seniors, Intermediates and Brownies, each with its own leader.

The speaker called attention to the Kiwanians, who sponsor two troops of Scouts and Brownies, that the Lone Troop Association, recently sponsored a Scout Leaders Training Course for several weeks. Mrs. Alton Fortney, Luke, an experienced and qualified leader for the course, conducted weekly classes and a number of persons qualified for the post of leaders in the three scout classes.

There is enthusiasm, Mrs. Swadley said, among the leaders for the work, and the young girls in three age groups are now receiving training under circumstances that speak well for the foundation work, and more and more girls are wanting to join the scout groups.

The Kiwanis Club of Keyser was thanked by the speaker, for their early and wholehearted support of Girl Scouting, and said the Kiwanians followed through and arranged for the Lone Troop Association and the leaders' training course that is beginning to show fine results.

At the meeting Rev. Charles W. Paskel, a member of Kiwanis, was given a vote of thanks for presenting to the club, a hand made speaker rostrum and a cabinet he had made for use of the club.

Rev. Donald D. Anderson, club member, notified the club that members who "can sing," are asked to attend the first rehearsal of the "Community Sing" Sunday in the First Methodist Church at 2 p. m., to assist in the formation of a male chorus fathered by the Lions Club of Keyser. Rotary members will also take part. The three service clubs will present the "Community Sing" soon.

Visitors at the club, included Oscar Gustafson of the Potomac State College faculty, and two members of Circle K. Club of the college, Clarence Copeland, Jeannette, Pa., engineering major, and William Shure, Davis, W. Va., accounting major, at the college.

W. Va. Coal Producers Near End Of Worst Year

October Output Indicated Slight Tonnage Increase

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 3 (AP)—West Virginia's coal industry is limping toward the end of one of its worst years with prospects that production will be around 110 million tons.

State Mines Chief Frank B. King provided that estimate today as a somewhat better - than - average October figure was computed in the 1954 totals.

With October output of 9,622,556 tons and production for the first 10 months at 91,440,221 tons, statisticians went all the way back to 1940 to find a basis for comparison.

Mines Department officials said this would be the shortest production year since the 126,620,000 tons produced in 1940. These figures compare with the record output of 176,306,656 tons achieved in 1945, and the 173,654,000 tons produced in another banner year, 1947.

Meanwhile, there were encouraging reports about a fire which has been raging since an explosion killed one man and trapped 15 others in the Jamison No. 9 mine at Farmington last Nov. 13.

King said that latest samples of atmosphere from the sealed mine showed the carbon monoxide content had diminished to 0.6 per cent.

The oxygen content as shown by the samples continued at 4½ per cent. Officials said a reduction of both elements to zero would indicate the fire has been smothered.

The mine was sealed to put out the fire which followed in the wake of a series of explosions which shook the big mining operation in one of the most tragic of all events to befall the state's coal industry this year.

Through Nov. 30, the Mines Department lists 116 fatalities in the mining industry, against 101 for the corresponding period of 1953.

The Farmington mine, King noted, had compiled one of the best safety records in the state's mining history before the explosion last month. It had produced 6,800,000 tons without a fatal mishap of any kind.

State Paroles Several Men From This Area

ANNAPOLIS, Dec. 3 (AP)—The state released 104 persons from Maryland penal institutions in October for what is believed a new record in paroles, the Department of Parole and Probation announced today.

The list includes mostly those serving short sentences, none more than 20 years.

An official said the long list was an indication the department is beginning to operate as it should. "We were organized to speed up paroles, and we're beginning to function properly now," he said.

Those paroled:

Conrad P. Williams, 1 year, deadly weapon, Frederick County, last May.

Robert Franklin Loar, 2 years and 3 months, burglary and stealing, Allegany County, October, 1953.

Charles Wade Ashby, not more than 1 year, arson and burning, Garrett County, last May.

Mt. Savage Scout Honored

Gerald M. Huff, Mt. Savage, has been selected by Frostburg Mountain District Boy Scouts of America, to compete for the honor of representing this region in the "Report to the Nation" ceremonies to be held in Washington during Boy Scout Week 1955. The scout selected to represent this region will receive from the President a certificate of Merit for Outstanding Service in Conservation. Only 12 Scouts in the United States will be selected to go to Washington for the National Honor. Gerald, an Eagle Scout with a Gold Palm, is Senior Patrol Leader of Troop No. 50, Mt. Savage. He attends Mt. Savage High School where he has formed a musical combo, "Four Notes." He also sings first bass in the Methodist Church Choir.

Radio Station Pays Tribute To Moorefield Navy Pilot Who Died In Plane Crash

"Lieut. Leon Rex Grover Jr., 30-year-old veteran of 13 years in the Navy, who was attached to the Naval Auxiliary Air Station at Sanford, was killed on November 8, when his plane crashed in the Mediterranean Sea, flying from the USS Carol Sea. In the same accident Lt. (jg) Garth W. Garreau and Billie D. Patterson AT2, the members of the crew, also lost their lives.

"Lieut. Grover came to Sanford for duty at the Naval Auxiliary Air Station in August of 1953 from Norfolk, Va. He was a pilot in World War II when he saw duty in the Pacific Theatre as a pilot of dive bombers and fighters. He was attached to the famed USS Wasp during that period of his service, and had also been attached to the Security Branch in Washington. While in that city he studied Russian at Georgetown University, but was transferred just three months prior to receiving his degree in languages.

"Lieut. Grover's home is in Moorefield, where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Grover Sr., reside. He was born in Thompsontown, Pa. Besides his wife and his parents, he is survived by three children, Leon Rex Grover III, 8 years, Linda Lee, 7 years, and Jane Ellen, 15 months. A brother, John Grover, is studying medicine at Harvard Medical School, Cambridge, Mass., and a sister, Miss Helen Grover, is a senior at Mary Baldwin College at Staunton, Va.

"It was learned that Lieut. Grover was one of two pilots stationed at the Naval Auxiliary Air Station qualified to fly the multi-engined AJ Savage airplane for refueling jets in the air. According to a recent letter he had made a demonstration of refueling in the air for NATO officials in France.

"He was attached to Composite Squadron VC-5 in Sanford and was on detached duty in the Mediterranean Area at the time the plane crashed."

Ryff Decisions Orlando Zulueta

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP) — Although he was cut over both eyes as early as the fourth round, undefeated Frankie Ryff of New York outpunched and outgeneralled Cuba's Orlando Zulueta to win a 10 - round decision in Madison Square Garden tonight.

Ryff weighed 136, Zulueta 133½. The 22-year old Bronx lightweight contender was gashed over the left eye in the first round and over the right orb in the fourth but he carried the fight to Zulueta all the way to grab the split decision, his 16th victory in as many pro bouts. Zulueta was cut over the left eye in the fifth round of the bloody battle.

Referee Harry Kessler (8 rounds to 2) and Judge Harold Barnes (6-3-1) voted for the youngster. Judge Americo Schiavone had Zulueta ahead, 6-4. The Associated Press had Ryff in front, 7-2-1.

Boxing Guild Officer Fined And Suspended

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (INS)—The New York State Athletic Commission fined Bill Daly, suspended fight manager and International Boxing Guild treasurer, $500 today, but Daly indicated he may contest the fine in court.

The suspension grew out of the commission's investigation of $100 "kickbacks" paid the Guild by member managers after their fighters participated in televised fights. Certified public accountants testified today that they were unable to determine, from Daly's records, whether such payments for Martinez's fights were deducted from the manager's or the fighter's share of the purse.

Daly said he planned to enter suit in state supreme court to test the commission's right to fine him.

Pitt Coach Quits

Friedlund is the third member of the 1954 staff to quit. Head Coach Lowell (Red) Dawson announced Nov. 16 he will not seek extension of his three-year contract which expires next Feb. 1. Ass't Coach Bill Bevan quit a few days later.

Maryland 6-Day Deer Season Opens Monday At 7:20 A. M.

Garrett And Allegany Records Are 583, 279; 17 Counties Are Open

Maryland's annual six-day open season on male deer with two or more points to one antler will get under way Monday in 17 of the state's 23 counties, namely, Allegany, Garrett, Washington, Frederick, Carroll, Baltimore, Calvert, Harford, Cecil, Kent, Caroline, Queen Anne's, Talbot, Dorchester, Wicomico, Somerset and Worcester.

The hunting hours for Cumberland and vicinity are 7:20 a. m. to 4:50 p. m. daily, or sunrise to sunset, according to the Maryland Hunters' Guide, copies of which are distributed to those who purchase licenses throughout the state.

Staff Is Augmented

The law enforcement staff in Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties will be augumented by seven district game wardens from other sections of the state.

The season on small game which opened November 1 and closes January 1, is suspended in Garrett and Allegany counties during the deer season and will be reopened on Monday, December 13. The small game includes rabbits, quail, pheasant and grouse.

A new record for deer kills was hung up last year when a total of 279 were slain with firearms. That figure topped the previous high of 232 set in 1952. The opening day's bag of 132 last year also was a new record in Allegany.

Garrett County's all-time mark for the 6-day season was 583 kills. Last year 443 were bagged in Garrett.

Each hunter is limited to one deer a season. Archers who bagged deer during the bow and arrow special season, November 1 to 13, are disqualified during next week's 6-day season.

...bra It is unlawful to remove the head or hide or other parts, except internal organs, or cut up the meat until the deer has been reported and weighed at checking stations.

Ralph Guglielmi Plays Final Game For Notre Dame

SMU-Irish Contest Will Be Televised

DALLAS, Dec. 3 (AP) — Young Ralph Guglielmi, rated with the finest quarterbacks in Notre Dame's glamorous football history, plays his last game tomorrow and he's a major reason why the Irish are 2-touchdown favorites to beat Southern Methodist.

Five times the Irish and Methodists have met on the gridiron and except for last year when Notre Dame won 40-14, there wasn't more than seven points difference.

But there appears small prospect of it being that close this time as the Methodists come up to the big one—against a Notre Dame team that lost one in early season to Purdue but is rated now among the best teams of Irish history. SMU is without its fine quarterback, Duane Nutt, thus dulling its passing arm materially.

But there'll be a sell-out crowd of 75,504 in the Cotton Bowl because this is the most attractive game SMU ever plays. It also is the nationally televised game of the week.

Gugielmi will be playing his twenty-fifth contest for the Irish.

Fight At Rochester

Ryff Decisions Orlando Zulueta

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP) — Although he was cut over both eyes as early as the fourth round, undefeated Frankie Ryff of New York outpunched and outgeneralled Cuba's Orlando Zulueta to win a 10 - round decision in Madison Square Garden tonight.

The 22-year old Bronx lightweight contender was gashed over the left eye in the first round and over the right orb in the fourth but he carried the fight to Zulueta all the way to grab the split decision, his 16th victory in as many pro bouts. Zulueta was cut over the left eye in the fifth round of the bloody battle.

Referee Harry Kessler (8 rounds to 2) and Judge Harold Barnes (6-3-1) voted for the youngster. Judge Americo Schiavone had Zulueta ahead, 6-4. The Associated Press had Ryff in front, 7-2-1.

Boxing Guild Officer Fined And Suspended

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (INS)—The New York State Athletic Commission fined Bill Daly, suspended fight manager and International Boxing Guild treasurer, $500 today, but Daly indicated he may contest the fine in court.

The suspension grew out of the commission's investigation of $100 "kickbacks" paid the Guild by member managers after their fighters participated in televised fights. Certified public accountants testified today that they were unable to determine, from Daly's records, whether such payments for Martinez's fights were deducted from the manager's or the fighter's share of the purse.

Daly said he planned to enter suit in state supreme court to test the commission's right to fine him.

Pitt Coach Quits

Friedlund is the third member of the 1954 staff to quit. Head Coach Lowell (Red) Dawson announced Nov. 16 he will not seek extension of his three-year contract which expires next Feb. 1. Ass't Coach Bill Bevan quit a few days later.

Maryland 6-Day Deer Season Opens Monday At 7:20 A. M.

Garrett And Allegany Records Are 583, 279; 17 Counties Are Open

Maryland's annual six-day open season on male deer with two or more points to one antler will get under way Monday in 17 of the state's 23 counties, namely, Allegany, Garrett, Washington, Frederick, Carroll, Baltimore, Calvert, Harford, Cecil, Kent, Caroline, Queen Anne's, Talbot, Dorchester, Wicomico, Somerset and Worcester.

The hunting hours for Cumberland and vicinity are 7:20 a. m. to 4:50 p. m. daily, or sunrise to sunset, according to the Maryland Hunters' Guide, copies of which are distributed to those who purchase licenses throughout the state.

Staff Is Augmented

The law enforcement staff in Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties will be augumented by seven district game wardens from other sections of the state.

Deer may be taken with firearms or bow and arrow.

The season on small game which opened November 1 and closes January 1, is suspended in Garrett and Allegany counties during the deer season and will be reopened on Monday, December 13. The small game includes rabbits, quail, pheasant and grouse.

A new record for deer kills was hung up last year when a total of 279 were slain with firearms. That figure topped the previous high of 232 set in 1952. The opening day's bag of 132 last year also was a new record in Allegany.

Garrett County's all-time mark for the 6-day season was 583 kills. Last year 443 were bagged in Garrett.

Each hunter is limited to one deer a season. Archers who bagged deer during the bow and arrow special season, November 1 to 13, are disqualified during next week's 6-day season.

..bra It is unlawful to remove the head or hide or other parts, except internal organs, or cut up the meat until the deer has been reported and weighed at checking stations.

Ralph Guglielmi Plays Final Game For Notre Dame

SMU-Irish Contest Will Be Televised

DALLAS, Dec. 3 (AP) — Young Ralph Guglielmi, rated with the finest quarterbacks in Notre Dame's glamorous football history, plays his last game tomorrow and he's a major reason why the Irish are 2-touchdown favorites to beat Southern Methodist.

Five times the Irish and Methodists have met on the gridiron and except for last year when Notre Dame won 40-14, there wasn't more than seven points difference.

But there appears small prospect of it being that close this time as the Methodists come up to the big one—against a Notre Dame team that lost one in early season to Purdue but is rated now among the best teams of Irish history. SMU is without its fine quarterback, Duane Nutt, thus dulling its passing arm materially.

But there'll be a sell-out crowd of 75,504 in the Cotton Bowl because this is the most attractive game SMU ever plays. It also is the nationally televised game of the week.

Gugielmi will be playing his twenty-fifth contest for the Irish.

Fight At Rochester

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 3 (AP)—Peter Mueller, former German middleweight champion, gets another chance to display his boxing talents tomorrow night when he tangles with Ralph (Tiger) Jones in a 10-rounder at the Sports Arena.

The nationally televised fight (9 p.m. EST ABC) will be Mueller's second U.S. start. In his first, he lost a wild 10-round decision Nov. 15 to Gene Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah.

NOT FOR THAT PURPOSE

BIDDING systems have been devised to fit the situations which are most important in the long run, involving the largest possible number of points to be won or lost. If somebody tried to revise one so as to make the bidding of freakish deals better, he would have to weaken it in matters which develop with much greater frequency. As a consequence, sound bidders are largely in the realm of guesswork when trying to decide what they should do with a deal that involves extreme lengths in certain suits with resultant shortages in others.

	♠ Q J 6 4 3 ♥ 9 8 ♦ 10 9 ♣ Q 9 8 6
♠ 10 7 5 ♥ 4 2 ♦ K J 6 4 3 ♣ J 10 2	N W E S	♠ None ♥ A K Q J 10 7 5 3 ♦ Q 8 7 ♣ A 4
	♠ A K 9 8 2 ♥ 6 ♦ A 5 2 ♣ K 7 5 3

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1. 1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	3 ♥
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	5 ♥
2. 1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	4 ♥
4 ♠
3. 1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Dbl.
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	5 ♥

There were other bidding sequences on this deal, in a duplicate game among a lot of fine players. It went as high as 6-Hearts in one case, South doubling, and was made because South first scored his diamond A, which enabled West shortly to discard a club on that suit. Even one case arose in which South sacrificed at 6-Spades.

The results in the play ranged all the way from successful high contracts for one side or the other to beaten contracts for each side. There was even one table at which East decided it was smart to pass North's 2-Spades bid and then come in later at 5-Hearts, hoping for a double, in which the canny opponents fooled him.

What would you do on your first turn in the East? Would you bid 3-Hearts, 4-Hearts, 3-Spades or double? Or might you pass? No matter what you think you would do, there is no assurance of it. At the exact moment when the time for action is at hand, you might feel differently about it. And that is true also of all good players.

NOT FOR THAT PURPOSE

BIDDING systems have been devised to fit the situations which are most important in the long run, involving the largest possible number of points to be won or lost. If somebody tried to revise one so as to make the bidding of freakish deals better, he would have to weaken it in matters which develop with much greater frequency. As a consequence, sound bidders are largely in the realm of guesswork when trying to decide what they should do with a deal that involves extreme lengths in certain suits with resultant shortages in others.

	♠ Q J 6 4 3 ♥ 9 8 ♦ 10 9 ♣ Q 9 8 6
♠ 10 7 5 ♥ 4 2 ♦ K J 6 4 3 ♣ J 10 2	N W E S	♠ None ♥ A K Q J 10 7 5 3 ♦ Q 8 7 ♣ A 4
	♠ A K 9 8 2 ♥ 6 ♦ A 5 2 ♣ K 7 5 3

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1. 1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	3 ♥
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	5 ♥
2. 1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	4 ♥
4 ♠
3. 1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Dbl.
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	5 ♥

There were other bidding sequences on this deal, in a duplicate game among a lot of fine players. It went as high as 6-Hearts in one case, South doubling, and was made because South first scored his diamond A, which enabled West shortly to discard a club on that suit. Even one case arose in which South sacrificed at 6-Spades.

The results in the play ranged all the way from successful high contracts for one side or the other to beaten contracts for each side. There was even one table at which East decided it was smart to pass North's 2-Spades bid and then come in later at 5-Hearts, hoping for a double, in which the canny opponents fooled him.

What would you do on your first turn in the East? Would you bid 3-Hearts, 4-Hearts, 3-Spades or double? Or might you pass? No matter what you think you would do, there is no assurance of it. At the exact moment when the time for action is at hand, you might feel differently about it. And that is true also of all good players.

Another New High Mark Set By Buoyant Stock Market

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—Another new high mark was established today by a strong stock market.

It was the second day of buoyant prices, and on average the market went into new high ground since September of 1929.

Two outstanding stocks were Cities Service up 11⅞ at 127¼ and Du Pont up 4½ at 166½.

Cities Service proposed a 2½-for-one split. Demand was so intense that trading was halted briefly. The stock reopened on a block of 10,000 shares up 13⅝ at 129, high for the day.

City Planning To Build Shed At Local Airport

The City of Cumberland has entered into an agreement with the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company to add an oil storage shed to the Kelly hangar at Municipal Airport.

Mayor Roy W. Eves said the city has agreed to furnish the labor and the Kelly will furnish all building materials.

The hangar was built by the city after Kelly made a contract to pay rent until the cost of construction is amortized. After that time is reached, the Kelly will rent the hangar from the city at a rate of $125 a month, the mayor commented.

The moving of the oil storage is a safety move. Work will be done by the crew headed by Charles F. Heller, supervisor of maintenance at the airport.

Choreography is the art of composing or arranging dances or ballets.

City Planning To Build Shed At Local Airport

The City of Cumberland has entered into an agreement with the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company to add an oil storage shed to the Kelly hangar at Municipal Airport.

Mayor Roy W. Eves said the city has agreed to furnish the labor and the Kelly will furnish all building materials.

The hangar was built by the city after Kelly made a contract to pay rent until the cost of construction is amortized. After that time is reached, the Kelly will rent the hangar from the city at a rate of $125 a month, the mayor commented.

The moving of the oil storage is a safety move. Work will be done by the crew headed by Charles F. Heller, supervisor of maintenance at the airport.

Delegates Plan Study Of Acid Mine Drainage

Say State-Wide Support Needed

The Allegany County Delegation last night took under advisement a request from the Upper Potomac River Board for legislative action to halt acid mine pollution in the Potomac River.

Delegate Charles M. See, chairman of the delegation, said the delegates will confer on the subject with Senator Robert B. Kimble, who was unable to be present.

Officials of the Upper Potomac River Board pointed out that all legislation introduced on the subject has always been rejected, and said Joseph T. Singewald Jr., director of the Department of Geology, Mines and Water Resources had suggested that if a 1947 bill designed to regulate mine wastes were to include Garrett County the constitutional reasons for that bill's rejection would be eliminated.

New Approach Needed

They advised the board that a bill to regulate acid mine drainage would have a better chance for passage if it were backed by other agencies of the state, such as the Health Department and other agencies interested in reducing stream pollution and expanding Maryland's industries.

Such a new approach would take the bill out of the local legislation class, as it has been in the past, since only Allegany and Garrett counties have active mining industries.

The seriousness of the problem were cited by J. B. Dowling, of the Health Department; Mark W. Roe, chairman; W. D. Claus, secretary, and J. G. Patrick, supervisory engineer for the Savage River Dam.

Load Is Heavy

Patrick said the mines from Western Maryland pour from 50 to 80 tons of sulfuric acid into the Potomac River each day.

Dowling related the extent of pollution in the Potomac River, and said much is being accomplished in cleaning up the river, but that much more must be done.

He cited the Savage River Dam, the sewage treatment plant which Cumberland will build as a major accomplishment, and added that septic tank facilities being provided in homes, schools and business establishments are steps in the right direction.

Mine wastes, he added, is the next biggest job.

Also representing the Board were Robert Beall, of the Geological Survey, and Henry W. Price, district manager of the Potomac Edison.

All of the delegates indicated definite interest in any plan which would reduce pollution in the Potomac River.

Santa Gets Helping Hand

Members of the Marine Corps Reserve have been conducting a "Toys For Tots" drive and are giving Santa Claus a helping hand to make sure that deserving children of Cumberland will have a merrier Christmas. The picture above shows a jeepful of some of the many toys which have been given by local residents. They are being repaired and repainted by members of the Marine Corps Reserve, the Naval Reserve and also the Associated Charities. The two Marines pictured above are Sgt. John Young, in the driver's seat, and Cpl. Richard Weber with an armful of the toys. Headquarters for the toys is 75 North Centre Street and playthings may be left there all day today, according to Captain Henry W. Tubbs, inspector-instructor of the USMCR unit.

Carscaden Asks Two Changes In Maryland Laws

Says Widow's Share Should Be Increased

The Allegany County Delegation last night promised to study two suggested changes in Maryland law relating to financial responsibility in motor vehicle accidents and to the share of the estate allowed by law to the widow of a man who dies without making a will.

The amendments were suggested by William R. Carscaden, local attorney, at a meeting held last night in the Union Street County Building.

Delegate Charles M. See, chairman, said the delegates will also refer the suggestions to Senator Robert B. Kimble, who was unable to attend due to previous commitments.

The first suggestion is designed to eliminate, under certain conditions, the necessity of filing an "SK22" form.

Doubles Premium

Carscaden said that in the 1953 session of the Legislature, the Maryland Financial Responsibility law was changed to require that a person whose auto operating privileges had been suspended must file what is technically known as a SK22 form before the license could be reinstated.

He said that prior to 1953, if a person who had his license suspended would enter into a payment agreement, or pay the amount of damages resulting from an accident and file releases, his operating privileges would be reinstated.

Carscaden said it is his contention that when a person pays for damages to another's car, he should be entitled to have his driving privileges reinstated without the filing of an SK22.

Filing of the form, he added, results in a policy on which ordinary premiums are due to be cancelled by the insurance company, and the driver must then take out a policy on which the premium is more than twice that of the usual policy.

More For Widow

Carscaden's second suggestion calls for increasing to a more realistic figure the widow's share of a man's estate.

He said that under the present law of Maryland, when a man dies without a will, leaving a widow but no children, mother or father, his widow receives the first $2,000 of his estate, and half of the rest of his estate.

The other half of the estate is divided among the brothers and sisters and children of deceased brothers and sisters.

Carscaden said the $2,000 provision has been in effect for a number of years but should be raised to $10,000.

To Institute Auxiliary

Cumberland Council, United Commercial Travelers Ladies Auxiliary will be instituted at a ceremony at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Odd Fellows Hall. Mrs. Audrey McConihay, Charleston, W.Va., grand counselor, will officiate.

County Road Policy Will Remain Same

Two Wilkinson Resolutions Tabled

A brief dispute over county road policy and the tabling of two resolutions proposed by Commissioner Charles N. Wilkinson marked the first meeting of the new Board of County Commissioners yesterday morning.

The road controversy was brought to a head when J. Walker Chapman, county roads supervisor, asked whether there would be a change in county road policy under the new board.

"Will one commissioner be able to tell me what I should or should not do?" Chapman asked.

William H. Lemmert, board president, said that the same policy would prevail that has been in effect the past four years. Road work will be done under a definite program, he said, and any action taken by the department will be by a majority vote of the commissioners.

Requests Drainage Work

Wilkinson, who had remained silent until this point, said that it was imperative that a grader be sent to DeHaven Road, on which he lives, to open ditches so that water can drain off properly instead of eroding much of his land.

The commissioner, returning to the board after a four-year absence, said he had requested Chapman on repeated occasions to send men to DeHaven Road.

"DeHaven Road has been in the county system for years and the county roads department has the responsibility of keeping it in good repair," Wilkinson asserted.

He then invited persons attending the meeting to drive out to DeHaven Road, which runs off Baltimore Pike opposite the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club, to see what he termed the poor drainage conditions existing there.

One of the Wilkinson resolutions proposed sweeping changes in the county government. The other urged action that the commissioners are virtually certain of taking concerning industrial tax exemption and the 40-per cent write-off for tax purposes.

Action on the resolutions was withheld for further study on the propositions.

Ten-Point Program

Take necessary steps immediately to enlarge the Allegany County Hospital and Infirmary.

Put the county bookkeeping system under the supervision of a full-time certified public accountant.

Repair the Flat Rock Bridge near Barton and put it in use for the benefit of nearby residents and for fire fighting equipment in case of fires in that section.

Would Keep Gas Tax

Take necessary measures to authorize and permit the county to retain for its own use for construction and maintenance of county

Area Scouts Do Good Turn For Conservation

Project Will Open At Camp Potomac

Reports from 16 of the 40 troops and Cub packs show that Scouts and leaders of Potomac Council have taken an active part in Conservation Good Turn, which was adopted as a 1954 project by the Boy Scouts of America.

Ross O. Decker, camping and activities chairman for the council, said the project which ended October 31 was undertaken on a national scale through the request of President Eisenhower that Boy Scouts do a good turn for conservation.

He said units which have reported to date have accomplished gratifying results, adding that units which have conducted satisfactory programs will be presented achievement certificates by the federal departments of Agriculture and Interior.

The incomplete reports show that the scout units have planted 16,250 trees, improved 16 acres of woodland, improved 1,100 feet of stream of lake shore, stocked 500 fish, built brush piles to provide cover for wildlife and planted 50 shrubs which will provide food for wildlife.

Scouts Check Erosion

Decker said the work was accomplished in cooperation with forest, game and conservation commissions of both Maryland and West Virginia and with state and federal soil conservation commissions.

The Scouts and Scouters also helped to spread the conservation message to the public in talks before parent-teacher associations, service clubs and school and civic groups.

The tours included visits to sawmills, forest land, streams and farms for views of both good and bad conservation measures.

Fire Lane Planned

The work will go on, Decker added, since Camp Potomac has signed up for conservation programs sponsored by the Soil Conservation Service, the Game and Inland Fish Commission and the Department of State Forests and Parks.

He said the agencies have prepared complete plans for a full-scale conservation program at the 114-acre camp site near Oldtown.

The plans include proper management of the forest area, plans for fire protection, provisions for encouraging wild life and the gradual improvement of the camp.

Within the next few weeks, work is expected to start on a fire lane extending completely around the property. It will be built by the Department of Forests and Parks, aided by Scouts and Scouters.

The fire lane will later be planted with shrubs and bushes which will provide needed food for wild animals.

Decker said troops which spend weekends at Camp Potomac this winter will help with the program by cutting down for firewood diseased trees, which have been marked by forestry workers.

Army Seeks Group Of Men For Special Assignment

M/Sgt. George T. Wells, local recruiter, has been instructed to assemble as many area men as possible who would like to stay together in the Army.

These men will be sent to Baltimore for physical examinations and other processing. Then on December 15, they will again leave for Baltimore for induction the following day.

After being sworn in, they will be dispatched in a unit to Fort Jackson, S. C., for basic training. Upon completion of basic, the unit will be returned to Fort George G. Meade, Md., where they will become a part of the Third Armored Cavalry Regiment.

This regiment, to be completed with groups of local men from various sections who wish to remain together, will be shipped to Europe for assignment in Germany, Sgt. Wells said.

Wells said the plan is effective immediately and he has already begun interviews.

Seven Injured In 3-Vehicle Crash On 220

Petersburg Girl Hospitalized Here

Seven persons were injured and one of them was hospitalized, last night in a three-vehicle highway accident on U.S. Route 220 in Pendleton County, W. Va., near the Grant County line.

Most seriously injured was Miss Betty Woods, 18, of Petersburg, W. Va., an evangelist for the Assembly of God Church. She was admitted to Memorial Hospital here last night with a fractured nose, teeth concussion and abrasions of the knees. Her condition was reported as "good."

Treated at the clinic were John Spohn, 49, of Bluefield, W. Va., who suffered lacerations of the face and forehead; Mrs. Helen Pancake, 29, of Moorefield, lacerations of the face; Mrs. Velma Arnold, 20, also of Moorefield, a cut over her left eye and Albert Snyder, 32, of Rig, W. Va., who suffered multiple lacerations of the face and ear.

Trooper John Leeson, of the West Virginia State Police at Petersburg, pieced the accident together this way:

The vehicle in which Miss Woods, Snyder and Mrs. Arnold were riding was being driven by Mrs. Pancake. They were traveling toward Brushy Run, at Pansy, W. Va., near Franklin, where an evangelistic service was being held.

As Mrs. Pancake rounded a curve, she apparently was on the wrong side of the road when an approaching half-ton pickup truck, loaded with plate glass and driven by Gordon Dean crashed headon into the Pancake car. Jerry Dean and Spohn were passengers in the truck.

Both the car and the truck were demolished and an estimate on the damages to the vehicles and the load of glass—being delivered to the Romney School for The Deaf and The Blind—was not available last night, police said.

Meanwhile, another vehicle following the Pancake car crashed into the rear of the vehicle. However the driver of the car apparently was uninjured. He was able to assist in taking some of the injured to the clinic in Petersburg, then left the scene.

Two persons uninjured in the Pancake car were Mrs. Evelyn Snyder, of Rig and Mrs. Vera Arnold, of Moorefield. Investigating with Trooper Leeson are Cpl. O. G. Webley, stationed at Franklin, and Chief of Police Robert Day of Petersburg.

An investigation is being continued, and no charges have been filed.

The Allegany-Garrett County Volunteer Firemen's Association will meet tomorrow at the Corriganville Fire Hall.

Robert Sine of the communication department of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company will discuss the radio network which will be installed in fire trucks throughout the county in conjunction with the Civil Defense program.

David E. Kirk, president of the bi-county association, requests that each company planning to get the radios to have its president or secretary as well as its representative present at the meeting. He pointed out that additional papers concerning the operators of the radios will have to be signed by an officer of each company.

Ten Area Men Enlist In Army

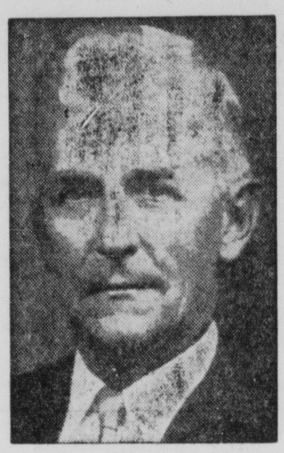

Ten men have been enlisted in the United States Army, according to M. Sgt. George T. Wells, local Army recruiter.

The group, all of whom have started their basic training, includes Robert Paul Williams, 829 Virginia Avenue; Thomas Ray House, 222 Springdale Street; Gerald L. Moorehead, 203 Spruce Street; Joseph Henry Lewis, 303 Paca Street, and Donald A. Shoup, 107 Ashley Street, this city.

NEW COLLECTORS — These three Allegany County citizens yesterday were appointed as state and county tax collectors in the three districts of the county. J. Wallace Close, 862 Camden Avenue, upper left, is the new collector for District 1, which accounts for about 70 per cent of the county's taxes. He is a coal dealer. Upper right is Paul LaRue, Centennial Street Extended, Frostburg, the new collector for District 2. At the lower right is James Holmes, who is the new collector for District 3 in the Lonaconing area. He has stepped down as a county commissioner after 20 years because of his defeat in the June Republican primary.

Parents, Educators Discuss Problems At Workshop

About 100 parents and educators attended a Parent Discussion Group Workshop yesterday at Mt. Royal School.

Homer S. Higgins, supervisor of pupil personnel in the county schools, who had expected about 175, said that residents in the Georges Creek area remained away because of the early morning snow.

Dr. Fred Thompson, a consultant of the Child Study Institute of the University of Maryland, began the day-long program by discussing control of children.

Members of the Parent Discussion Group at Gephart School, under the direction of Mrs. Calvin Keiter, presented a play entitled "Random Target." Miss Dorothy Shires, state supervisor of pupil personnel, explained some of the objectives of the play before it was presented.

Frederick H. Sheeley, visiting teacher in the George's Creek area of the county, led a discussion which followed the play.

School officials are planning the second of these workshops this school year in April. At that time the plan will be to visit two areas of the county, actually working with one parent discussion group while others observe.

That April meeting probably will end with a night session at which a consultant will discuss one area of child growth and development.

Bridge Deck Will Be Blacktopped

Mayor Roy W. Eves announced yesterday that the S. T. Brotemarkle Construction Company plans to lay the blacktop on the deck of the new Valley Street Bridge next week, if weather permits.

This will consist of a two-inch bituminous wearing course, applied over the reinforced concrete deck.

Mayor Eves said this does not mean that the bridge is completed, but that it can be opened to traffic this winter.

The contractor this week made the last pour of concrete needed for the approach to the span across Wills Creek, and city workers have been placing curbing needed at the North Mechanic Street approach.

Girl Scout Leaders Entertained By Board At Annual Yule Party

Leaders from districts, neighborhoods and from 16 Girl Scout troops in the Cumberland Council were guests Thursday at the annual dinner held by the Scout Board of Directors to honor the leaders.

It was the second annual Christmas party for the leaders and a holiday motif featured the decorations and entertainment. Gifts were distributed to all those present and a Christmas tree was lighted.

A program of Christmas carols and games was featured.

The committee chairman was Mrs. Ralph Isiminger, decorations were arranged by Mrs. A. W. McClung; Mrs. Elizabeth Williams had charge of the program and Mrs. Joseph Williams, president of the council, greeted the guests.

Candidates' Expenditures Are Listed

Seven more candidates in the November 2 general election have just filed their expense accounts in the office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court.

Lee Marple, this city, who was unsuccessful in his campaign to be elected a county commissioner as an independent, lists total expenses of $1,438.16.

Marple noted that he had no contributions "all expenses paid by me, Lee Marple." Biggest item in his expense report was $619 for posters, stickers and labels. A total of $375.69 was listed for poll workers and other costs.

Leslie J. Clark, Democrat, who was defeated in his bid for a seat in the House of Delegates, reported expenditures of $388. Included were $25 filing fee, $223.04 for various types of advertising, $20 for postcards, $4.25 for telephone, $11 for transportation, $11 for messengers, $7.50 for posting signs, a $50 contribution to the County Democratic State Central Committee and $25 to M. P. Ramsey, treasurer for C. Ferdinand Sybert, successful candidate for Attorney General.

Lester B. Reed, Republican re-elected to the House of Delegates, listed his general election expenditures at $159.54, including $35 he contributed to the Republican State Central Committee, $55.14 for newspaper advertising and $69.40 for other advertising.

State Senator Robert B. Kimble, also re-elected, reported contributions of $650 from three labor organizations and disbursements totaling $984.40. He itemized the disbursements to show $206.15 for bumper signs, $349.19 for matches, $27 for signs, $80.46 for telephone calls, $271.60 for newspaper advertising and $50 given to the Republican State Central Committee.

Donald W. Mason, Kimble's campaign treasurer, submitted a supplemental report showing contributions of $397 from 13 persons and expenditures of the same amount for workers, fire hall rental, newspaper and radio advertising.

State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher reported spending only $109, $100 of it a contribution to the Republican State Central Committee and $9 for newspaper advertising.

Sheriff Edward R. Muir spent $273.30, he reported. That included $70.80 for newspaper advertising, $92.50 for program advertising, $10 for posting cards and $100 given to the GOP State Central Committee.

Register of Wills A. Charles Stewart said he spent only $80 in his campaign, $72 as a contribution to the Republican State Central Committee and $8 for advertising. He was unopposed in the general election.

County Positions Filled As Board Begins Activities

Commissioners Make Numerous Changes

Three new tax collectors were appointed, three new constables were named and a number of other changes were adopted yesterday at the organizational meeting of the new Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

The actual voting on the various appointments was done at an executive session of the board in the Grand Jury room on the second floor of the Court House. When the new board formally met, James G. Stevenson, the clerk, simply read off the appointments, citing which ones were opposed by Charles N. Wilkinson, the new board member.

William H. Lemmert was re-elected president of the board and James Orr was named acting president to serve in the absence of Lemmert.

New Collectors

New collectors are J. Wallace Close, 862 Camden Avenue, for District 1 at the Court House; Paul LaRue, Centennial Street Extended, Frostburg, for District 2, and James Holmes, ending 20 years as a county commissioner, for District 3.

Close, who is engaged in a coal business on McMullen Highway, said he would retain the present tax collector, Ernest B. Treat, as his aide. District 1 collects about 70 per cent of the county's taxes.

LaRue, who has held no previous political office, operates the Shaw Tire Repair Shop on West Main Street in Frostburg. Holmes, who lost out in the June primary after having served 20 years on the county board, has been a Lonaconing resident for many years.

Two constables were reappointed along with the three new ones, while two positions were left vacant. Reappointed were Roy Van Fleet, for Cumberland, and Leonard Murphy, for Westernport. New constables are David Jerome Wilson, for Frostburg; Robert Matthews, for Lonaconing, and Carl J. Neder, for Mt. Savage.

Wilson Constable

Wilson succeeds William F. Twigg. Matthews replaces Eilbeck Moses who received the vote of Wilkinson. Neder takes the place of Charles Albright, who also got Wilkinson's vote. The Cresaptown constable post remained unfilled when Wilkinson's nomination of Harry Patton died for want of a second. There has been no constable for the Cresaptown area since Charles Evans moved to Michigan about four months ago. Also left unfilled was the other post in Cumberland which Harold D. Brooks formerly held.

There was a shuffling among clerks at the Court House, too. Mrs. Mildred Edmunds was named clerk and stenographer to the county commissioners, succeeding Miss Jeanette Barrett. Mrs. Esther Hiser was named to fill Mrs. Edmunds' former position as finance department clerk. Miss Barrett then was named clerk to the assessing department, the present position of Mrs. Hiser.

Janitor Changes

Some changes also were made among the janitors at the county buildings. Ross Wolf was named relief janitor at the Court House, a position presently held by J. Carl Faulkner. Wilkinson voted for Faulkner for the post. Another change was in the post of head janitor at the Union Street Building, where Herbert Allen was successful in replacing William L. Walker, who received Wilkinson's vote. George F. Burkett was appointed relief janitor at Union Street, a position presently unfilled.

Walter Patterson was appointed county sanitary inspector, a position formerly held by Blaine Robinette.

Others reappointed include Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the board; J. Walker Chapman, county roads supervisor; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Messmer, superintendent and matron at Sylvan Retreat; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Grim, superintendent and matron at the County Home and Infirmary; Mrs. Johanna Sills, county auditor; Dr. James E. McLean, county physician; Dr. Winter R. Frantz, county health officer, and Mrs. Rose Loibel, Mrs. Mary Whitfield and Miss Betty Lou Harsh, public health nurses.

Also reappointed were David Kirk of Barton, real estate and transfer clerk; Clarence Valentine, chief clerk of Trial Magistrate's Court; William Bishop, deputy clerk; Joseph H. Cook, bailiff; Alvin Schneider, Court House chief custodian; Alonzo Middleton and Harley O. Dicken, Court House custodians; Lloyd E. Mullin, elevator operator; E. F. Montgomery and George Shumake, Union Street janitors, and Walter M. Fuller, clerk in the county roads department office on Union Street.

Other reappointments included Ransom B. Nave, timekeeper and custodian at the Franklin Street garage; Elmer Seward, county barber; Catherine Carter, clerk in Trial Magistrate's Court, Frostburg; Mildred K. Green and Anna C. Hart, clerks and typists in the assessing department; Olwen McMorran, personal property clerk, and Esther Walton, clerk in finance department.

Wilkinson cast votes in opposition to 14 appointments. They included Lemmert, Mrs. Edmunds, Miss Walton, Kirk, Mrs. Sills, Bishop, Schneider, Chapman, Nave, Mr. and Mrs. Messmer and Mr. and Mrs. Grim. He did not vote on the appointments of Orr, Mrs. Hiser and Miss Barrett.

County Is Highway Accident-Free During October, State Police Statistics Show

However in neighboring Garrett County one person met death during the same period. In this county the report shows that 10 persons were injured in a total of 35 accidents.

Of that number, 18 of the mishaps occurred in the rural part of the county while 17 occurred in the urban areas.

Five persons were hurt in some 12 accidents in Garrett County during October. State Police said that a total of 50 traffic deaths occurred throughout the state, bringing the figure of persons killed in auto accidents for the ten month period to 417.

This represents a three per cent decrease when compared with last year's figure for the same period which was 432.

Fifteen of the persons who were killed by motor vehicles were pedestrians and it represents approximately 30 per cent of the October traffic fatalities.

Some 1,343 persons were injured in traffic accidents throughout Maryland in October and this total represents an average of 43 personal injuries each day as the result of traffic accidents.

The statistics gathered by the State Police shows that one person was killed every 15 hours and one person was injured every 33 minutes during October.

Delegates Plan Study Of Acid Mine Drainage

Say State-Wide Support Needed

The Allegany County Delegation last night took under advisement a request from the Upper Potomac River Board for legislative action to halt acid mine pollution in the Potomac River.

Delegate Charles M. See, chairman of the delegation, said the delegates will confer on the subject with Senator Robert B. Kimble, who was unable to be present.

Officials of the Upper Potomac River Board pointed out that all legislation introduced on the subject has always been rejected, and said Joseph T. Singewald Jr., director of the Department of Geology, Mines and Water Resources had suggested that if a 1947 bill designed to regulate mine wastes were to include Garrett County the constitutional reasons for that bill's rejection would be eliminated.

New Approach Needed

The delegates pointed out that Garrett County pulled out of the 1947 strip mine regulation bill and might do so again.

They advised the board that a bill to regulate acid mine drainage would have a better chance for passage if it were backed by other agencies of the state, such as the Health Department and other agencies interested in reducing stream pollution and expanding Maryland's industries.

Such a new approach would take the bill out of the local legislation class, as it has been in the past, since only Allegany and Garrett counties have active mining industries.

The seriousness of the problem were cited by J. B. Dowling, of the Health Department; Mark W. Roe, chairman; W. D. Claus, secretary, and J. G. Patrick, supervisory engineer for the Savage River Dam.

Load Is Heavy

Patrick said the mines from Western Maryland pour from 50 to 80 tons of sulfuric acid into the Potomac River each day.

Dowling related the extent of pollution in the Potomac River, and said much is being accomplished in cleaning up the river, but that much more must be done.

He cited the Savage River Dam, the sewage treatment plant which Cumberland will build as a major accomplishment, and added that septic tank facilities being provided in homes, schools and business establishments are steps in the right direction.

Mine wastes, he added, is the next biggest job.

Also representing the Board were Robert Beall, of the Geological Survey, and Henry W. Price, district manager of the Potomac Edison.

All of the delegates indicated definite interest in any plan which would reduce pollution in the Potomac River.

Carscaden Asks Two Changes In Maryland Laws

Says Widow's Share Should Be Increased

The Allegany County Delegation last night promised to study two suggested changes in Maryland law relating to financial responsibility in motor vehicle accidents and to the share of the estate allowed by law to the widow of a man who dies without making a will.

The amendments were suggested by William R. Carscaden, local attorney, at a meeting held last night in the Union Street County Building.

Delegate Charles M. See, chairman, said the delegates will also refer the suggestions to Senator Robert B. Kimble, who was unable to attend due to previous commitments.

The first suggestion is designed to eliminate, under certain conditions, the necessity of filing an "SK22" form.

Doubles Premium

Carscaden said that in the 1953 session of the Legislature, the Maryland Financial Responsibility law was changed to require that a person whose auto operating privileges had been suspended must file what is technically known as a SK22 form before the license could be reinstated.

He said that prior to 1953, if a person who had his license suspended would enter into a payment agreement, or pay the amount of damages resulting from an accident and file releases, his operating privileges would be reinstated.

Carscaden said it is his contention that when a person pays for damages to another's car, he should be entitled to have his driving privileges reinstated without the filing of an SK22.

Filing of the form, he added, results in a policy on which ordinary premiums are due to be cancelled by the insurance company, and the driver must then take out a policy on which the premium is more than twice that of the usual policy.

More For Widow

He said that under the present law of Maryland, when a man dies without a will, leaving a widow but no children, mother or father, his widow receives the first $2,000 of his estate, and half of the rest of his estate.

The other half of the estate is divided among the brothers and sisters and children of deceased brothers and sisters.

Carscaden said the $2,000 provision has been in effect for a number of years but should be raised to $10,000.

To Institute Auxiliary

Cumberland Council, United Commercial Travelers Ladies Auxiliary will be instituted at a ceremony at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Odd Fellows Hall. Mrs. Audrey McConihay, Charleston, W.Va., grand counselor, will officiate.

County Road Policy Will Remain Same

Two Wilkinson Resolutions Tabled

A brief dispute over county road policy and the tabling of two resolutions proposed by Commissioner Charles N. Wilkinson marked the first meeting of the new Board of County Commissioners yesterday morning.

The road controversy was brought to a head when J. Walker Chapman, county roads supervisor, asked whether there would be a change in county road policy under the new board.

"Will one commissioner be able to tell me what I should or should not do?" Chapman asked.

William H. Lemmert, board president, said that the same policy would prevail that has been in effect the past four years. Road work will be done under a definite program, he said, and any action taken by the department will be by a majority vote of the commissioners.

Requests Drainage Work

Wilkinson, who had remained silent until this point, said that it was imperative that a grader be sent to DeHaven Road, on which he lives, to open ditches so that water can drain off properly instead of eroding much of his land.

The commissioner, returning to the board after a four-year absence, said he had requested Chapman on repeated occasions to send men to DeHaven Road.

"DeHaven Road has been in the county system for years and the county roads department has the responsibility of keeping it in good repair," Wilkinson asserted.

He then invited persons attending the meeting to drive out to DeHaven Road, which runs off Baltimore Pike opposite the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club, to see what he termed the poor drainage conditions existing there.

One of the Wilkinson resolutions proposed sweeping changes in the county government. The other urged action that the commissioners are virtually certain of taking concerning industrial tax exemption and the 40-per cent write-off for tax purposes.

Action on the resolutions was withheld for further study on the propositions.

Ten-Point Program

The ten-point program advocated by Wilkinson in starting his third term as commissioner follow:

Put, by law, the county road construction and maintenance, which costs the taxpayers $300,000 annually, under the supervision of a professional engineer with no assistant of his rated above foreman.

Take necessary steps immediately to enlarge the Allegany County Hospital and Infirmary.

Put the county bookkeeping system under the supervision of a full-time certified public accountant.

Repair the Flat Rock Bridge near Barton and put it in use for the benefit of nearby residents and for fire fighting equipment in case of fires in that section.

Would Keep Gas Tax

Take necessary measures to authorize and permit the county to retain for its own use for construction and maintenance of county

Area Scouts Do Good Turn For Conservation

Project Will Open At Camp Potomac

Reports from 16 of the 40 troops and Cub packs show that Scouts and leaders of Potomac Council have taken an active part in Conservation Good Turn, which was adopted as a 1954 project by the Boy Scouts of America.

Ross O. Decker, camping and activities chairman for the council, said the project, which ended October 31 was undertaken on a national scale through the request of President Eisenhower that Boy Scouts do a good turn for conservation.

He said units which have reported to date have accomplished gratifying results, adding that units which have conducted satisfactory programs will be presented achievement certificates by the federal departments of Agriculture and Interior.

The incomplete reports show that the scout units have planted 16,250 trees, improved 16 acres of woodland, improved 1,100 feet of stream of lake shore, stocked 500 fish, built brush piles to provide cover for wildlife and planted 50 shrubs which will provide food for wildlife.

Scouts Check Erosion

Other Scouts reported they helped fight forest fires, checked erosion in gullies and built nesting boxes for wild animals.

Decker said the work was accomplished in cooperation with forest, game and conservation commissions of both Maryland and West Virginia and with state and federal soil conservation commissions.

The Scouts and Scouters also helped to spread the conservation message to the public in talks before parent-teacher associations, service clubs and school and civic groups.

During summer camp, over 400 scouts and scouters went on conservation tours conducted by Kenneth Stone, of the Soil Conservation Service.

The tours included visits to sawmills, forest land, streams and farms for views of both good and bad conservation measures.

Fire Lane Planned

The work will go on, Decker added, since Camp Potomac has signed up for conservation programs sponsored by the Soil Conservation Service, the Game and Inland Fish Commission and the Department of State Forests and Parks.

He said the agencies have prepared complete plans for a full-scale conservation program at the 114-acre camp site near Oldtown.

The plans include proper management of the forest area, plans for fire protection, provisions for encouraging wild life and the gradual improvement of the camp.

Within the next few weeks, work is expected to start on a fire lane extending completely around the property. It will be built by the Department of Forests and Parks, aided by Scouts and Scouters.

The fire lane will later be planted with shrubs and bushes which will provide needed food for wild animals.

Decker said troops which spend weekends at Camp Potomac this winter will help with the program by cutting down for firewood diseased trees, which have been marked by forestry workers.

Army Seeks Group Of Men For Special Assignment

The Army has announced a special program for immediate recruiting of a group, squad or platoon of area men for special assignment.

M/Sgt. George T. Wells, local recruiter, has been instructed to assemble as many area men as possible who would like to stay together in the Army.

These men will be sent to Baltimore for physical examinations and other processing. Then on December 15, they will again leave for Baltimore for induction the following day.

After being sworn in, they will be dispatched in a unit to Fort Jackson, S. C., for basic training. Upon completion of basic, the unit will be returned to Fort George G. Meade, Md., where they will become a part of the Third Armored Cavalry Regiment.

This regiment, to be completed with groups of local men from various sections who wish to remain together, will be shipped to Europe for assignment in Germany, Sgt. Wells said.

Wells said the plan is effective immediately and he has already begun interviews.

Seven Injured In 3-Vehicle Crash On 220

Petersburg Girl Hospitalized Here

Seven persons were injured and one of them was hospitalized, last night in a three-vehicle highway accident on U.S. Route 220 in Pendleton County, W. Va., near the Grant County line.

Most seriously injured was Miss Betty Woods, 18, of Petersburg, W. Va., an evangelist for the Assembly of God Church. She was admitted to Memorial Hospital here last night with a fractured nose, teeth concussion and abrasions of the knees. Her condition was reported as "good."

X-rayed at the Veach and Townsend Clinic, Petersburg, were Gordon Dean, 31, of Bluefield, driver of one of the other vehicles, who sustained a shoulder injury and his brother, Jerry, 28, who sustained a chest injury.

Treated at the clinic were John Spohn, 49, of Bluefield, W. Va., who suffered lacerations of the face and forehead; Mrs. Helen Pancake, 29, of Moorefield, lacerations of the face; Mrs. Velma Arnold, 20, also of Moorefield, a cut over her left eye and Albert Snyder, 32, of Rig, W. Va., who suffered multiple lacerations of the face and ear.

Trooper John Leeson, of the West Virginia State Police at Petersburg, pieced the accident together this way:

The vehicle in which Miss Woods, Snyder and Mrs. Arnold were riding was being driven by Mrs. Pancake. They were traveling toward Brushy Run, at Pansy, W. Va., near Franklin, where an evangelistic service was being held.

As Mrs. Pancake rounded a curve, she apparently was on the wrong side of the road when an approaching half-ton pickup truck, loaded with plate glass and driven by Gordon Dean crashed headon into the Pancake car. Jerry Dean and Spohn were passengers in the truck.

Both the car and the truck were demolished and an estimate on the damages to the vehicles and the load of glass—being delivered to the Romney School for The Deaf and The Blind—was not available last night, police said.

Meanwhile, another vehicle following the Pancake car crashed into the rear of the vehicle. However the driver of the car apparently was uninjured. He was able to assist in taking some of the injured to the clinic in Petersburg, then left the scene.

Two persons uninjured in the Pancake car were Mrs. Evelyn Snyder, of Rig and Mrs. Vera Arnold, of Moorefield. Investigating with Trooper Leeson are Cpl. O. G. Webley, stationed at Franklin, and Chief of Police Robert Day of Petersburg.

An investigation is being continued, and no charges have been filed.

He pointed out that additional papers concerning the operators of the radios will have to be signed by an officer of each company.

County Positions Filled As Board Begins Activities

Commissioners Make Numerous Changes

Three new tax collectors were appointed, three new constables were named and a number of other changes were adopted yesterday at the organizational meeting of the new Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

The actual voting on the various appointments was done at an executive session of the board in the Grand Jury room on the second floor of the Court House. When the new board formally met, James G. Stevenson, the clerk, simply read off the appointments, citing which ones were opposed by Charles N. Wilkinson, the new board member.

William H. Lemmert was re-elected president of the board and James Orr was named acting president to serve in the absence of Lemmert.

New Collectors

New collectors are J. Wallace Close, 862 Camden Avenue, for District 1 at the Court House; Paul LaRue, Centennial Street Extended, Frostburg, for District 2, and James Holmes, ending 20 years as a county commissioner, for District 3.

Close, who is engaged in a coal business on McMullen Highway, said he would retain the present tax collector, Ernest B. Treat, as his aide. District 1 collects about 70 per cent of the county's taxes.

LaRue, who has held no previous political office, operates the Shaw Tire Repair Shop on West Main Street in Frostburg. Holmes, who lost out in the June primary after having served 20 years on the county board, has been a Lonaconing resident for many years.

Two constables were reappointed along with the three new ones, while two positions were left vacant. Reappointed were Roy Van Fleet, for Cumberland, and Leonard Murphy, for Westernport. New constables are David Jerome Wilson, for Frostburg; Robert Matthews, for Lonaconing, and Carl J. Neder, for Mt. Savage.

Wilson Constable

Wilson succeeds William F. Twigg. Matthews replaces Eilbeck Moses who received the vote of Wilkinson. Neder takes the place of Charles Albright, who also got Wilkinson's vote. The Cresaptown constable post remained unfilled when Wilkinson's nomination of Harry Patton died for want of a second. There has been no constable for the Cresaptown area since Charles Evans moved to Michigan about four months ago. Also left unfilled was the other post in Cumberland which Harold D. Brooks formerly held.

There was a shuffling among clerks at the Court House, too. Mrs. Mildred Edmunds was named clerk and stenographer to the county commissioners, succeeding Miss Jeanette Barrett. Mrs. Esther Hiser was named to fill Mrs. Edmunds' former position as finance department clerk. Miss Barrett then was named clerk to the assessing department, the present position of Mrs. Hiser.

Janitor Changes

Some changes also were made among the janitors at the county buildings. Ross Wolf was named relief janitor at the Court House, a position presently held by J. Carl Faulkner. Wilkinson voted for Faulkner for the post. Another change was in the post of head janitor at the Union Street Building, where Herbert Allen was successful in replacing William L. Walker, who received Wilkinson's vote. George F. Burkett was appointed relief janitor at Union Street, a position presently unfilled.

Walter Patterson was appointed county sanitary inspector, a position formerly held by Blaine Robinette.

Others reappointed include Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the board; J. Walker Chapman, county roads supervisor; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Messmer, superintendent and matron at Sylvan Retreat; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Grim, superintendent and matron at the County Home and Infirmary; Mrs. Johanna Sills, county auditor; Dr. James E. McLean, county physician; Dr. Winter R. Frantz, county health officer, and Mrs. Rose Loibel, Mrs. Mary Whitfield and Miss Betty Lou Harsh, public health nurses.

Also reappointed were David Kirk of Barton, real estate and transfer clerk; Clarence Valentine, chief clerk of Trial Magistrate's Court; William Bishop, deputy clerk; Joseph H. Cook, bailiff; Alvin Schneider, Court House chief custodian; Alonzo Middleton and Harley O. Dicken, Court House custodians; Lloyd E. Mullin, elevator operator; E. F. Montgomery and George Shumake, Union Street janitors, and Walter M. Fuller, clerk in the county roads department office on Union Street.

Other reappointments included Ransom B. Nave, timekeeper and custodian at the Franklin Street garage; Elmer Seward, county barber; Catherine Carter, clerk in Trial Magistrate's Court, Frostburg; Mildred K. Green and Anna C. Hart, clerks and typists in the assessing department; Olwen McMorran, personal property clerk, and Esther Walton, clerk in finance department.

Wilkinson cast votes in opposition to 14 appointments. They included Lemmert, Mrs. Edmunds, Miss Walton, Kirk, Mrs. Sills, Bishop, Schneider, Chapman, Nave, Mr. and Mrs. Messmer and Mr. and Mrs. Grim. He did not vote on the appointments of Orr, Mrs. Hiser and Miss Barrett.
